in review

January

It was announced that plans would proceed for construction of a 34-house subdivision off Brewer Avenue in Mountain View.

Fifty Six City Council accepted the resignation of Recorder/Treasurer Johnetta Pogue, and the Arkansas Ethics Commission notified Mayor Barbara Wallace that it had investigated complaints filed against her and had dismissed the matter.

James Maurice Tudor, founder of the Stone County Leader, died Jan. 30 at age 83.

Fox and Prim communities were included in a feature by The New York Times on the push-back from rural communities over the threat of post office closures.

February

Mountain View School launched plans to expand the high school gymnasium and construct a new agri building.

The state highway department announced plans for 1.2-mile passing lanes on Highway 66 on either side of Happy Hollow Road.

Legal Aid of Arkansas announced a reorganization of its service delivery system that would include closing the Mountain View office. Legal Aid has continued to provide services locally out of a county office building.

Arkansas Tech University dedicated a room in the Baswell Techionery in honor of former Tech Board of Trustees member and Mountain View resident Janice Sutton.

March

Rod Luther was honored as 2012 Distinguished Citizen during the annual banquet of the Mountain View Chamber of Commerce. Katie Morris took over as chamber president, Marianne Murphy received the Von Dean Jeffery Award for Volunteer Service, and Grady Spann received the Bill Young Community Cooperation Award.

Preston Hipp took over as Stone County Cooperative Extension agent for agriculture.

Mountain View School Board approved an $85,000 settlement to be paid to the estate of former Superintendent Greg Jackson. The money was for salary and other benefits owed to Jackson after he was suspended while still under contract in 2010. He died in an accident in 2011 with the matter unresolved.

April

“Through the Decades – Celebrating 50 Years” was the theme for the 50th Annual Arkansas Folk Festival.

Lloyd Westbrook, Edwin Luther and Tommy Simmons served as grand marshals, and Eddie Walker was honorary grand marshal. All four were community leaders involved in the development of the festival. Special events for the 50th festival included a young musicians concert, historic fiddle showcase, matinee music program, and community gospel singing.

Millard “Junior” Henley, 42, died April 14 as a result of injuries sustained in a March 30 accident.

The state highway department open bids on a project to resurface two miles of Highway 66 West near Mountain View.

May

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board approved a private club permit for Anglers Restaurant at Allison. The application was initially declined by the ABC director and was appealed to the board. A large crowd of interested Stone County residents traveled to Little Rock for the appeal hearing at which the permit was granted.

Stone County Courthouse underwent an exterior renovation. The project included sandblasting and replacement of old mortar, strengthening the joints and improving the appearance of the building.

Larry Hamilton started work as the new Stone County Conservationist.

Leo and Linda Sutterfield pose with the Century Farm sign that will be erected on their property.

‘Century Farms’ recognized McCallister-Sutterfield Farm one of three inducted

By Edie Sutterfield

Whether they are born with a natural attachment to the place they live, or develop it over the years, farmers undoubtedly have a special affection for their land.

Longtime farm families who have lived in one place for generations tend to be especially attached, and often carry on their work when they would have every other reason to quit.

“There’s all kinds of ways of deciding what’s a better life,” according to Linda (McCallister) Sutterfield.

Linda, whose family farm at Hanover is one of those included in the Arkansas Agriculture Department’s Century Farm Program, has given a lot of thought to the connection between farm families and their land.

“It’s like you transfer a feeling of family to a piece of land,” she said. “It’s the kind of love you have for your mother, that you transfer to a stream and a tree and a field.”

The land comprising the original McCallister farm is owned by Linda and her cousins, James Jeffries of Mountain View and Eula Storey, Charles Jeffries and Patricia Hamlin, all of Jonesboro.

The farm is operated by Linda and her husband, Leo Sutterfield, along with their daughter. Linda and Leo live on the farm, just across the field from the original home place where her family has lived since the 1870s.

The first McCallister in Stone County, Andrew Jackson McCallister, brought his family here

Three Stone County farms were recognized by the Arkansas Agriculture Department in December as part of the Century Farm Program – a new program that recognizes Arkansas’s rich agricultural heritage and honors families who have owned and farmed the same land for at least 100 years.

Local farms recognized by the program this year were the Rushing Farm, located in the Rushing community; the Stewart Farm in West Richwoods; and the McCallister-Sutterfield Farm at Hanover in East Richwoods.

Representatives from each family attended a ceremony in Batesville Dec. 18, where they were presented with certificates and signs to be placed on each farm designating it as a Century Farm.

Other farms in the county may be eligible for the program, as well.

Each Stone County Century Farm will be featured in the Leader. This is the second of three.

from Mississippi at the close of the Civil War, settling on Dodd Mountain south of Mountain View.

His son, James Monroe McCallister, married Mary Elizabeth Risner, who was a descendant of Peter Young, one of the earliest settlers in the county. James Monroe bought a farm in a valley a few miles from where his father lived, in the community of Hanover in East Richwoods. (It is not known how or when Hanover got its name.)

Like all early farm families, the McCallisters were remarkably self sufficient, growing almost everything they needed. They raised cattle, sheep, and Angora goats, which produced mohair wool that was sheared and sold each year. They also raised hogs and all kinds of poultry, selling fertile eggs from various breeds of chickens.

“We raised feeder pigs at the time I went to college,” Linda said. “Daddy sold feeder pigs and put the money in my account. I went to college, out and out, on feeder pig checks.”

The McCallisters were also hunters and bred and showed hounds – foxhounds and later beagles. The family still has some hunting horns used by James Monroe and his sons and grandsons.

The first dwelling on the farm was a combination house and store built near Johnson Creek. The creek runs through the farm and joins Tomahawk farther down the valley. It used to run year-round and had fish in it, Linda said.

The house was dismantled and rebuilt in the late 1940s. During the construction, the family slept in a rock outbuilding across the road and provided Linda with her earliest memory – looking out the window and seeing sheep passing by.

The valley in which the farm is located has many sinkholes and caves, including one that provided an early form of refrigeration for the family. They kept their milk and other perishable items in the cave to keep them cool in hot weather.

The farm also had its own grist mill for grinding corn, and the family operated a store.

Schutter charged

John D. Schutter was charged in Stone County Circuit Court last week with: breaking or entering, a class D felony; possession of an instrument of crime, a class A misdemeanor; theft of property, a class A misdemeanor and criminal impersonation second degree, a class A misdemeanor.

His bond was set at $5,000.

Accident victim dies

Freeman Hochstetler, 75, of Concord died Dec. 23 at his home. Hochstetler was seriously injured Dec. 13 in an accident involving members of Shady Lawn Mennonite Church.

A trailer with 20 passengers on board was struck from behind by a Ford pickup as the trailer crossed Highway 5 to participate in the church’s “Journey Through Bethlehem” Christmas presentation. Hochstetler was a passenger on the wagon and was airlifted following the accident.

Rural Special teachers Pam Perry and Russ Ann Shannon and Timbo teacher Kathy Fulks retired from teaching after long careers.

Former Mountain View Mayor Lona Ackerman died April 30 at age 94.

June

The Steve and Dawnette Anderson family of Newnata were honored as 2012 Stone County Farm Family of the Year.

The pellet factory at the Stone County Industrial Park re-opened under the ownership of Fiber Energy Products.

Rural Special teachers Noreen Linville and Pam Thomas were featured on their retirement from teaching.

July

Stone County was included in a disaster declaration that included most of the state, following months of severe drought and heat that made for one of the worst summers in memory. Farmers were hit hard by the extreme conditions, and many cut back their operations or quit completely. Water use was restricted, gardens were largely non-existent, and fireworks were banned. Trees died or went dormant in large numbers, and fires were a constant threat throughout the dry summer.

Campgrounds at Blanchard Springs Recreation Area remained partially closed throughout the summer after a flood in March stranded some campers and necessitated a follow-up study of campground safety.

Russell Pace, 56, died July 24 following a boating accident on the White River near Younger Access.

August

Stone County Medical Center celebrated the 50th anniversary of the hospital with an open house. A time capsule, to be opened in 50 years, was buried as part of the celebration events.

Ozarka College held a dedication and ribbon-cutting ceremony for its new amphitheatre. The amphitheatre seats 150 and is available for use by the community.

Excel Boat Company was approved for $100,000 loan from the county's industrial revolving fund, to purchase equipment and expand production at the local plant.

September

A 3-year-old boy from the Onia community was found after a massive search effort that attracted hundreds of volunteer searchers from around the state. Landen Trammell was missing for about 30 hours before he was located unharmed playing in the mud at the edge of a pond.

Wayne and Rickey Turner were tried together in Stone County Circuit Court in connection with a large marijuana growing operation found on their farm in eastern Stone County. The jury was deadlocked, and the case ended in a mistrial.

County residents struggled with an invasion of armyworms that destroyed much of the grass that had begun to sprout after a long spring-summer drought.

Incumbent Lori Dobbins was re-elected to the Mountain View School Board, winning a three-way race without a run-off. Michael "Tiger" Stewart also joined the board, running unopposed.

October

The Stone County Historical Society celebrated its 40th anniversary with a special gathering Oct. 14.

Despite cold weather, the 30th Annual Bean Fest and Outhouse Races were deemed among the best ever by event organizers.

The city of Mountain View accepted a bid for fluoride equipment and installation, amid considerable controversy about fluoridation of the city water supply.

Gin Brown of Mountain View was inducted into the Athletic Hall of Fame at Ouachita Baptist University, along with her teammates from the 1969-70 women's basketball team.

November

Most local incumbents were re-elected to county and city offices during the Nov. 6 General Election. The county voted Republican in all state and U.S. Senate and House races, and for president.

Stone County justices of the peace approved a 1.7 mill increase to county property taxes in an attempt to boost revenue needed for basic county services. It was the first property tax increase in 20 years.

A large crowd attended the 40th Annual Senior Citizens Banquet at Rural Special School.

Rachel Chaney began work as the Stone County Cooperative Extension agent for Family & Consumer Sciences.

Fall foliage was featured on photos pages in the Leader. The prolonged color this year was a surprise to many after the stress caused to trees by the harsh summer conditions.

December

Freeman Hochstetler, 75, died Dec. 23, following a Dec. 12 accident in which a vehicle struck a trailer carrying participants in a church Christmas program. Hochstetler was one of 20 passengers on the trailer.

Three Stone County farms—Rushing Farm at Rushing, Stewart Farm in West Richwoods, and McCallister-Sutterfield farm at Hanover—were among the first to be honored by the Arkansas Agriculture Department's Century Farm Program.

Longtime entertainer and owner of the Backstreet Theater in Mountain View, Don "Brickshy" Jones was honored upon his retirement.

Stone County officials agreed to help Fiber Energy Products obtain a grant for expansion of equipment and added jobs at the pellet factory.

Editorials and Opinions

IN OUR OPINION

Highlights – 2012

Looking back at the year’s biggest news stories, we feel compelled to honor a few with special mention.

Happiest Moment: hearing that 3-year-old Landen Trammell had been found after a 30-hour search in the Onia area, where the toddler had wandered away from his grandfather’s residence.

Biggest Missed Predictions: the world as we know it did not end on Dec. 21. Likewise, there is no evidence of the erosion of our society since Angler’s began serving alcoholic beverages in the restaurant.

Most Accurate Prediction: that you can have thousands of marijuana plants growing on your land, apparently cultivated using equipment that you own, and still not be responsible for it.

Biggest Mystery: why portions of a federal campground remain closed long after a routine flash flood threatened the safety of campers who ignored warnings.

Best Celebrations: the 50th Arkansas Folk Festival and the 50th anniversary of Stone County Medical Center were among highlights of 2012.

Best Autumn Ever: the fall foliage this year – both its brilliant color and longevity – is unsurpassed, especially considering it followed the Worst Summer Ever, which was marked by extended drought and heat.

Best Rally: the information and support presented by patrons of rural post offices under threat of closure – particularly in the Fox area – was a most impressive show of unity and logic.

Most Agonizing Existence: observing residents of Fifty Six try to maintain the city government with so many people at odds is truly painful.

Most Courage and Foresight: members of the Stone County Quorum Court who enacted a small property tax increase (the first in 20 years) to avoid a budget crisis showed what true leadership is.

Residents urged to post E-911 numbers

County officials remind residents about the importance of posting their house numbers according to E-911 requirements.

Stone County still has a problem with residents not posting their addresses, County Judge Stacey Avey said, and he urges them to do so, both for their own safety and for the convenience of utility and emergency service personnel.

Entergy workers, ambulance drivers and others have reported delays and other problems in finding homes that are not properly marked with their E-911 numbers, Avey said. Displaying these numbers is more important now than ever before, he added, as many services are not locally operated and drivers are less likely to automatically know where customers live.

The regulations for the posting of house numbers are found in a county ordinance, which reads as follows:

“Road address numbers for residences shall not be less than 3 inches in height and shall be made of a durable and clearly visible material. Whenever a building is more than 75 feet from the road or when the entrance of the building is not visible from the road, the numbers shall then be placed along a walk, driveway or other location so that the address number is discernible from the road. A second and third set of property numbers must be placed on both sides of a mailbox. Address numbers shall be of a contrasting color to the background on which they are mounted.”

Avey said the county has the option of sending someone out to number the houses and then charging the property owners when their property taxes are assessed. He said it is most important to have the number on the house itself, although in many cases it also should be posted by the road if the house is not visible from the road.

For more information, or if you do not know your E-911 number, call 269-9883 or 269-3351.

GUEST COLUMN

USDA helps families in 2012

By USDA Secretary of Agriculture Tom Vilsack

Over the course of 2012, farm families and rural communities faced a number of challenges. A record drought impacted much of the country and many were impacted by a major hurricane, flooding and severe storms. However, thanks to the resilience of rural Americans, our communities are still going strong.

Over the course of this year, USDA continued our record efforts to help folks across our nation, and I am proud of the work we carried out.

We supported agriculture. This summer, USDA convened the White House Rural Council to help America’s farmers and ranchers overcome drought. We provided unique flexibility for crop insurance that saved producers more than $20 million, expanded emergency lending for producers, opened more than 2.8 million acres of conservation land for emergency forage and more.

We promoted exports, with agricultural exports hitting a near-record level this year, and staying on track to set a new record in 2013. New, fully implemented trade agreements promise more than $2 billion in additional agricultural trade every year, and over the course of 2012 we broke down even more unfair trade barriers to U.S. products.

We supported conservation efforts. In America’s National Forests, we adopted a modern planning rule that will conserve the forest while creating more jobs. We protected more communities, clearing more than 4 million additional acres of flammable brush from forests. We continued our work with more than half a million private landowners to conserve America’s soil and water.

We built up communities. USDA provided an additional 10,000 loans and grants for rural businesses. We helped 150,000 more families achieve the dream of homeownership and carried out more than 1,500 new community facility projects. Meanwhile we expanded our efforts to improve rural infrastructure, with 10,000 new miles of electric line and more than 1,500 water improvement projects.

We ensured a safe food supply, and nutritious food for Americans. USDA took historic action this year to further inspect ground and raw beef products, and tighten standards for poultry. We continued our efforts to help one in four Americans put food on the table, while maintaining the integrity of food assistance programs. And we helped provide emergency food assistance for Hurricane Sandy victims – just one of more than 100 disasters for which we have provided this assistance since 2009.

I’m proud of these efforts. From supporting farmers to furthering business, our wide range of accomplishments stand as proof that USDA touches the lives of every American, every day. Since 2009, we’ve achieved record results in almost every part of what we do – and I look forward to accomplishing even more in the year to come.

Stone County Sheriff Dave Barnum officially assumed duties at midnight Friday, January 1 after being sworn in at midnight so there would be no doubt that Stone County had a certified sheriff on duty at all times during the transition of new county officials.

The most obvious change in the county clerk’s office as a result of former Municipal Clerk Donna Wilson’s election to that post will be a change in office hours, Wilson said last week.

“We will be open from 8 am to 4:30 pm, and we will be open through the noon hour,” Wilson said.

Stone County’s two state representatives, Roger Rorie of Fox and Billy Joe Purdom of Yellville, both predict continuing financial problems within the Department of Human Services. DHS will be the most pressing item on the General Assembly’s agenda when it convenes in Little Rock January 11.

Ozarka students donate to Manna House

The Licensed Practical Nursing (LPN) program at Ozarka College participates in community service projects each semester. The LPN students from Melbourne, Ash Flat and Mountain View each gave $15 to assist the Manna House of Melbourne to help feed the community.

The Manna House used the funds to provide Thanksgiving turkeys to families in need. Freedom Ford in Melbourne completed the dinner for those families. Melbourne students assisted Mana House volunteers in handing out the turkeys prior to Thanksgiving.

During the Spring 2012 semester Melbourne students gave personal care packages and food boxes to the Manna House for the Spring Community Service Project. This was to assist those who need items immediately after disasters such as fires, etc. Students from the Ash Flat and Mountain View campuses gave similar items in their local areas.

"Community service projects are an integral part of caring for those in need, nurses care not only for their clients but for those around them," said to Ruby Johnson, RN, Ozarka College Nursing Director. "Through projects such as this, especially in the holiday season, we should always remember those less fortunate than us and help when and where we can."

Art Guild to meet

The Mountain View Art Guild will meet on Monday, Jan. 7, at the Historical Society Building on School Avenue at 1:30 p.m.

The new officers for 2013 are Marion Thorpe, president; Joyce Hubbard, vice president; Kathy and Paula Lane, treasurers; and Susan Mink, secretary. Plans and workshops for 2013 will be discussed and a program will be given by Dan Stewart of the Stone County Historical Society.

Refreshments will be served, and all members and friends in the community are encouraged to attend.

Meeting scheduled

The Stone County Patriots "We The People" group will meet Thursday, Jan. 3, at 6:30 p.m. at the First Service Bank (across from Walmart).

A special program is planned for the January meeting.

Local, state and national issues will be discussed.

The group is totally independent and not aligned with any political party.

For information call 269-5306 or 269-4029.

Fundraiser planned

A pie auction fundraiser will be held January 4, at The Von Dean Jefferies Gymnasium, to raise money for the Mountain View High School Senior Celebration.

Come and enjoy the game against Concord and go home with homemade treats.

The Senior Celebration is an annual drug free party for the graduating class of Mountain View High School.

For more information contact Becky Morrison at 213-8564 or Lee Ann Thomas at 213-8224.

INNOCENT HEARTS ANIMAL RESCUE
presents Rodeo

I'm so happy, oh so happy, so happy, so care free and gay, cause I get to run and play. When I GROW up I want to be your best friend for ever and ever. I am about 6 months old I have a little while then I can say I'm a big boy now. Adopt me, love me, train me. You will say this is the best dog in the world. By the way, I'm Rodeo.

IS YOUR ESTATE IN ORDER?

Some People Think a Will Avoids Probate ~ That is Wrong!

Everyone wants to leave their hard earned assets to their heirs with as little cost and tax consequences as possible. The question is “what is the best way to accomplish this”. Many people think putting their children’s name on their property or transferring assets to their children is the answer. However, there can be many risks and adverse tax consequences to this action. For many people a trust is a much better solution because it does avoid probate and the costs and delays of probate.

Come see me for a no cost review of your options for a smooth transfer of your assets to your loved ones. Delaying an estate plan can have consequences you did not want and did not expect.

Let me help you keep what you have worked for!

“I survived a stroke and got my life back.”
— JIM SACK Mountain Home, Arkansas

Like Jim from Mountain Home, if you recognize the signs of a stroke and get to the Emergency Room within 4.5 hours, you might be eligible to receive a treatment that could reverse the effects of a stroke. Wait too long, and you could die. Fortunately there are doctors who are specially trained in diagnosing and treating strokes standing by through Telemedicine at Stone County Medical Center.

Don't let a stroke beat you or a loved one.

If you think someone may be having a stroke, act F.A.S.T. and do this simple test:

- FACE: Ask the person to smile. Does one side of the face droop?
- ARM: Ask the person to raise both arms. Does one arm drift downward?
- SPEECH: Ask the person to repeat a simple sentence. Are the words slurred? Can he/she repeat the sentence correctly?
- TIME: If the person shows any of these symptoms, time is important. Call 911 or get to the hospital fast. Brain cells are dying! Time lost is brain lost!

THINK ABOUT TAXES
BEFORE YOU START A NEW BUSINESS

Before you launch a new business, it's a good idea to prepare for an uninvited partner - the tax man. Knowing your tax obligations in advance can save time, money, and even the life of your business. Here are a few tips.

- Open a separate checking account for your company, and don't mix your business and personal payments. IRS auditors are trained to hunt for, and disallow, personal expenses claimed as business deductions.

- Apply for an employer identification number (EIN). Even if you're a sole proprietor with no employees, you'll need an EIN to start a self-employed retirement plan. Go to the IRS website (www.irs.gov) to obtain an EIN in a matter of minutes, or call the IRS and ask for Form SS-4.

- Keep complete accounting records. Although no special system is required by the government, your records must clearly reflect your income and expenses. Save business papers such as canceled checks, receipts, and invoices. You'll need them if you're audited later on.

- If you're a sole proprietor, partner, or owner of a limited liability company, you could owe substantial self-employment tax. This tax should be included with your quarterly estimated income tax payments.

- Depending on your location and type of business, you also could owe state and local taxes on income, gross receipts, payroll, or business property.

With all these issues, it's wise to consult a professional before getting started. An accountant can advise you about the specific tax requirements for your business, set up records that will pass government scrutiny, and continue to guide you as your business grows. Your payoff will be more time to build your firm and peace of mind while you're doing it. Please give us a call.

They also had the Hanover post office.

James Monroe and his son, Leonard, served as postmasters, followed by Leonard's daughter, Hattie Jeffries, son Hoyt, and Hoyt's wife, Athlene (Wilson) McCallister. The house sat close to Hanover Road, and the post office was located in the front yard along the road. Athlene served as postmaster until the post office closed in the early 90s. The building is still used and was moved to another part of the farm after the McCallister house burned in 2008.

Farming methods have changed a lot over the years. In the early days, fields were used to grow crops and hay for the winter, and the cattle were left to graze on an open range that lay outside the cultivated farms and belonged to the U.S. government.

This continued even into Linda's life, and she remembers going to the range with her father, Hoyt.

"There was open range between Hanover and Prim, and we used to take the cattle to the range in the spring," Linda recalls. They were driven to the range but would return home on their own when the weather turned cold.

"Daddy always said the first cold rain would bring the cattle home," she said.

Cattle were branded, with each family having an individual mark to identify their herd.

The McCallisters' brand was a diamond on the left hip, Linda said. She still has the branding iron and recalls playing "branding iron" with her cousins, James and Charles, pretending to brand one another.

Hardships are inevitable on any family farm, and the McCallisters have had their share.

Linda's father, Hoyt, was born in 1914 and recounted a hard year before his time, when the cattle didn't have enough to eat. The family drove them to Greenbrier Botoms, west of Batesville in Independence County, and let them loose in the canebrakes, returning later to collect what they could.

The family has also endured health-related challenges.

Linda's grandpa, Leonard McCallister, had juvenile diabetes, and he and two of his sons, Hoyt and Roy, were crippled by rheumatoid arthritis.

Despite severe arthritis that began in childhood and eventually left him completely disabled, Hoyt continued to manage the farm devotedly throughout his life and passed it on to daughter Linda.

Additional land from neighboring farms has been added to the operation over the years, and the farm today has mainly cattle, as well as goats and various poultry.

Linda and Leo were the first generation to work off the farm and have continued to deal with farming challenges, including a series of weather-related difficulties in recent years. From extreme winters in some years to severe drought and heat in the summer of 2012, it has been a difficult few years for farmers.

James Monroe McCallister and wife Mary (on porch) with their children, at their home in Hanover in the late 1800s. Leonard, who passed the farm on to his descendants, is second from the right.

"It would have been very different if we'd depended on the farm income," Linda said.

But farmers tend to stick with it even when it would be easier to do something else.

"People who stay on the same land generation after generation probably have a lot in common with each other. There's something that causes people to do that."

Heifer International fundraiser

Children feed goats and play during a "Gift a Goat" fundraiser Dec. 21 to benefit Heifer International. The Lazy Goat String Band sponsored the event with the goal of buying three goats for the organizations, which helps families in need. The fundraiser generated enough to triple the goal. Since 1944, Heifer International has provided livestock and environmentally sound agricultural training to improve the lives of those who struggle daily for reliable sources of food and income. Buying animals at events like Gift a Goat helps malnourished people escape chronic hunger to become more self-reliant.

Greers Ferry Dam lane closure slated for Jan. 7-18

One lane of Highway 25 across Greers Ferry Dam will close temporarily beginning at 7 a.m. Monday, Jan. 7 and ending at 5 p.m. Jan. 18, 2013.

Contractors will be working on the dam from the roadway. Traffic lights will be positioned at each end of the dam to direct traffic. Officials urge motorists to obey traffic signals.

Officials at the Army Corps of Engineers' Greers Ferry Project Office regret any inconvenience this may cause, and asks for the public's cooperation until the work is complete. The closure is being coordinated with emergency services and law enforcement agencies. Corps officials ask travelers to plan alternate routes and allow extra time to reach their destinations.

For more information contact the Greers Ferry Project office at (501) 362-2416, or stop by the office near the dam on Highway 25, three miles north of Heber Springs.

160 Thank You

THE FAMILY of Richard Brown wishes to express our thanks to all those who called, sent cards, visited, brought food, gifts and for all the prayers during our loss. Special thanks goes to Vital Link Ambulance Service and the hospital staff, Mountain View Police Dept. for leading us to the grave site, Roller Crouch Funeral Home, Donald & Don Smith for digging the grave and serving as pallbearers. Special thanks to Jack Robinson, Tim Brown, Johnny Brown and Daniel Smith, who also served as pallbearers. Thanks to the honorary pallbearers, his brothers, Walker, J.D., Norman (Red) and Darius (Doc.) Brown and his "little man" Chase "George" Hallman. A very special thanks to his nephew, Allen Brown for providing the music along with Walker Brown and "Angela Ring, then performing a well-done eulogy. He would have been so very proud of you. The Family of Richard Brown.

THE FAMILY of Odis Tunnicliff wants to thank everyone for their kindness and support during the loss of our loved one. For all the beautiful flowers and everyone who attended the service. One friend we have know for nearly 70 years and his adult children, thank you to those who traveled long distances to be with us. Thank you to the friend who paid for all the family's meals after the service. The chapel was filled with friends and family. Thanks to Roller Coffman Funeral Home for a superb job and arranging for Odis' military funeral. Thanks to Junior Deathridge for his help and kindness. The pallbearers, to the two men who presented the flag and played taps, and especially our childhood friend, Rev. Ray Lamb for conducting the service and Mr. Phroper's kindness. The Mountain View Police Department for the escort service and those who opened and closed the grave. If I missed anyone I'm sorry. May God bless you each one. The family of Odis Tunnicliff.

THE FAMILY of Bro. Bill Whitfield wishes once again to say thank you for the many expressions of love and concern following his recent graduation to glory. To those who visited the
