

No decision in court case

By Lori Freeze

A hearing to determine if the Stone County Election Commission should be held in contempt of court for placing the name of Lance Bonds on the General Election ballot as the Democratic nominee was continued Friday.

Pulaski County Circuit Judge Jay Moody did find that plaintiff Russ Aiken, the Republican nominee, was not entitled to attorney's fees, but continued the contempt hearing pending action on a lawsuit filed in Stone County.

Aiken filed suit in Stone County Circuit Court in September contesting the placement of Bonds' name on the ballot. The "verified petition for mandamus and declaratory judgment" names the Stone County Election Commission, Lance Bonds and Arkansas Secretary of State Charlie Daniels as defendants. In the case, Aiken contends that the special convention held by the county Democratic Party was illegal and void, and that the convention was held in violation of Arkansas law and party rules.

Aiken was successful in his lawsuit that challenged the validity of the special election held Aug.

3, a measure the Democratic party requested after the Preferential Primary run-off election ended in a tie between Bonds and incumbent Todd Hudspeth. The judge's ruling indicated the only way to fill the vacancy in nomination was through a party convention, and a convention was held Aug. 18. However, the vacancy in nomination had been declared on June 21, and state law requires that conventions be held within 25 days of the declaration, thus Aiken contends that Bonds has never been properly and legally nominated for the office, and that placing his name on the ballot violates the judge's ruling from the lawsuit as well as state law.

Bonds contends that after the special election was invalidated, a second vacancy occurred, and that his nomination by party convention fit within that timeline.

In the Stone County court action, Aiken requests that the court issue a writ of mandamus requiring the defendants to remove Bonds' name from the ballot, grant a declaratory judgment recognizing that Bonds is not the Democratic nominee for Stone County Sheriff, and award attorney fees and costs. Attorneys indicated at the hearing in Little Rock that they are seeking to have the local case transferred to Pulaski County Circuit Court.

Election Commission Chairperson Betty Allred said the courts are not providing closure that local voters need to make choices in the General Election.

She is confident, however, that the action taken by the election commission will stand the court challenge.

"Do not be afraid to vote for the candidate of your choice," she said.

Bean Fest set this weekend

The Bean Fest and Outhouse Races will take place this weekend in Mountain View.

Now in its 28th year, the festival has proven itself one of the most exciting and outrageous around, drawing thousands to the small Ozark town for hand-made crafts, music, pinto beans and cornbread, and the spectacle created by the outhouse racing teams.

The Beanie Weenie Dog Show takes place Thursday at 5 p.m. on the courthouse stage.

The Artisans Market at Bean Fest, sponsored by the Mountain View Area Artisans Council with funding assistance from the City of Mountain View, combines this popular festival with one of the Ozark's finest resources - artisans and craftspeople. The result is a fun-filled weekend featuring folk music, folk cuisine, and fine arts and crafts.

The Artisans Market on the Square will open Friday at 11 a.m. and be open until 5 p.m. The Market will continue on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The market will be located on the east side of the Court House Square on Peabody Avenue. The street will be blocked to traffic allowing visitors to mingle among artisans' booths while listening to music. Scheduled music programs will be presented on the outdoor stage at the courthouse on Saturday. Impromptu music groups will spring up around the area throughout the day and play into the evening hours. Visitors are encouraged to bring lawn chairs and stay for the duration.

The bean pots fire up early Saturday morning, and the piping hot pintos are served with cornbread at noon.

The parade of outhouses begins at 1 p.m. on Main Street, with the entrants making their way one block south to the raceway on Jefferson Street. Judging of the Most Original Outhouse and Best Costume takes place during the parade.

The races get started around 1:30, and many heats are required to determine the final winner in two divisions.

In addition to the activities of the Bean Fest and Outhouse Races, other fun things to do in Mountain View include shopping with local merchants, attending music theater shows, and visiting the Ozark Folk Center State Park. The Folk Center will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. for visitors to watch crafts demonstrations and listen to traditional music. Free shuttle service will be available from the Ozark Folk Center to the court square from 9 a.m. until 10 p.m. Saturday, and visitors are encouraged to park at the Ozark Folk Center and ride the shuttle downtown.

His bond was set at $10,000.

Animal control still council topic

By Edie Nicholson

Two men whose wives have been bitten by dogs in their neighborhoods addressed the city council last week, prompting another discussion of the animal control problem.

Mayor Jim Cash said the city had tried an animal control program in 2007 but gave it up because it was subject to too much scrutiny by animal welfare organizations.

"It just all kept falling apart, and they were on me all the time and the council," Cash said. "The humane society, they always wanted to know what was going on."

Cash noted that the program was not abolished, only suspended until the local humane society could complete its animal shelter.

He also indicated that the laws and regulations governing the handling of animals were very complex and that setting up an animal control department with a proper housing for animals would be very expensive - nearly as much as the police department.

Cash suggested that residents take care of dog problems individually.

"If a dog bit my wife, you know what I would have done," Cash said.

Jimmy Shields, who was speaking to the council about dogs in his neighborhood, said that shooting a dog is not always a practical solution inside the city limits, with people around.

"Right now nobody can do anything. That's not the way a city should be run," Shields said.

He said he found it hard to believe that the expense of an animal control program would be as much as Cash said. He commented that many if not most similar-sized towns have some kind of animal control, and he did not understand why Mountain View couldn't manage it. Shields suggested that a city police officer could become licensed and work part-time on animal control, as needed.

He also suggested that the council form a committee to begin research-

Vote November 2

Once again I would like to say thank you to everyone that has supported me in any way these past months. Your support has meant more to me than you can imagine. My family and I are deeply grateful. I believe with your support I will be your next Stone County Sheriff.

On Friday, October 22 Judge Jay Moody did not find any person in contempt of court. He did not award any money to the Plaintiff. My name is on the ballot and will remain there. Your vote will count. I will continue to fight any suits that are filed against me or this election process.

I know this county. I can give you names of my school teachers, people I went to school with, neighbors, people I have worked for and those who have worked for me. I can name Pastors of my churches and those I attend church with. My roots run deep in Stone County.

As I have said from the beginning I will work closely with the State Police, Drug Task Force, Mountain View City Police, Forestry Service and Game and Fish in an effort to battle illegal activity, combat teenage drinking and other alcohol and drug related problems.

We will always have criminals and laws will be broken but I will uphold and enforce the law and make arrests. I will be in the courts to support my deputies on arrests made.

I will work along side my deputies and increase patrol of county roads. We will be more involved in school and community programs.

I grew up in Stone County. I remember many Sheriffs that have served this county. Some of the best I remember had little or no experience, but knew the people and how to work with them.

Vote for a man that has lived here all of his life. Vote for a man that knows the area and the needs of this county. Vote for a man that knows the laws and will uphold and enforce them. Vote for a man that will work 24/7 for all of Stone County.

My experience in Law Enforcement and as a businessman will be an asset to the Sheriff's Office. I know how to budget and work with people. I know the members of the Quorum Court and I know we can work as a team for the betterment of the county.

My wife, Melissa, and I have two sons, Tyler and Brandon. I want to make our county a better and safer place to raise my family and yours.

For an honest, dependable, trustworthy and experienced man for Sheriff –

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Support of important charity appreciated

To the editor:

Once again, the people of our area have shown their kindness and generosity. For the past couple of weeks, I've collected for the Susan G. Komen Race for the Cure. On Saturday morning before the race, I was able to turn in $2,282 that you gave. This money goes to help with research for a cure, for mammograms for women who can't afford one, and for treatment of women with breast cancer.

This charity is close to my heart because I am a breast cancer survivor. Almost four years ago I had to have a double mastectomy and chemotherapy, but today I am very grateful to be cancer free. May God bless each one of you for giving. Thank you very much.

Fall evokes memory of nights in woods

The cedar burns the hottest and crackles the loudest. The smell is something that never leaves your memory! My mind lives for fall, when the woodsmoke of the fireplaces, borne on the wind, start their trek south from the north country. That first whiff of smoke and frost, so homey, like the sweet smell of bacon frying and coffee brewing on an early morn! Hard to imagine a smell that matches that. I have sat beside many a campfire, savoring the company of just myself and God, or a lover, a friend, an old dog, or a sweet kitten. When your front side is warm, you turn your back to the fire and face the dark woods. Once your eyes adjust to the darkness, you look up and behold more stars than you could ever imagine. You forget you are cold, and are spell-bound over a shooting star. The event is breathtaking, no matter how many times you are witness. You make the perfunctory wish, "I wish I had a million dollars!" The event is so magnificent, you wish for more like it. If you see none, your mind wills a fresh memory to the forefront until another appears. I could sit by a fire and watch the shooting stars till heaven and earth are one! The sounds of the wind in the trees and the crackle of a fire and the purr of a tiny kitten bundled up in my coat, is such sweet music, Mozart, in all his brilliance, could not improve on it.

The distant howl of a coyote, or the long and mournful sound of a southbound freight train. Except for the stint in the service, I have lived within a few blocks of train tracks my whole life. I have missed seeing the travelers in the windows of a passing passenger train, wondering where they were from, and their final destination. Is it a trip of joy or sadness? I have traveled to the deep wood, with a thought of hunting, taking only a few provisions, with the visions of adding a day's hunt to the pot. I have stalked many a rabbit and deer and squirrel with Daniel Boone intensity. But to this day I have never been able to finish the hunt. I have gone back to camp, and had potatoes and onions and peppers, with a little bacon added for flavoring. I just never can bring myself to pull the trigger. Am I less of a man? I think not! I am afraid of nothing or no one. I've seen times when critters were my only friends. I have looked deep into their eyes as they have mine. I see myself in the reflection of their eyes, my heart and theirs, my soul and theirs. Sometime in the wee small hours of a frosty morn, still black as the pit of an inkwell, the fire dies and only coals are glowing. It is so silent, you hear the sound of your heart and every breath that you take. The heat dies, and you shiver as the icy arms of early morn reach around and engulf you. You think you will break in the cold if you move to stoke the fire, so you are still. The icy solitude settles deep in your bones, and a sleepy resolve fills your mind. To sleep! To dream! To live! ... Perhaps, to die ... Somehow you manage to find your sack and after removing your outerwear you snuggle in searching for that cozy warmth that radiates from your body and is captured by the

Manners should be priority

By Shelley Branscum

It seems that being mean, rude and offensive has not only become socially acceptable, but popular. It seems to be the norm rather than something that most of us teach our children to avoid. Within the last few weeks I have seen, heard or read many examples of this, and I wanted to make some public comments on the subject in hopes of, at the very least, causing some discussions.

Example #1: Political ads on television have become so obnoxious that I either mute the TV or turn it off completely. In a 30 minute newscast there seem to be so many of them that it becomes an endless droning of accusations and tasteless slurs. These ads are embedded into a block of car sales, and pharmaceutical ads describing the gory details of private conditions and drug side effects ... lumped together it is all mindless babble trying to sell me something I don't want. The politicians badmouth each others' records and personal values, then promote themselves as upstanding pillars of society. I'm sick of all of them, and I wish someone would stand up and actually say something true. No hype, no personal attacks, no innuendo.

Example #2: There is an online forum site, whose name I will not mention because I do not want to give it any free publicity, where people can anonymously post their opinions about various subjects. Sounds harmless enough, right? Not on your life! The anonymity creates a "blind" behind which cowardly sociopaths can libel anyone they choose. There are specific names written as the title or in the body of the forums, and anyone who wants to can bash, curse and lie about the person under scrutiny. I have read some horrific stuff about people who have had problems, people who are innocently living their lives, and God help you if you're running for public office because the malicious gossip will be in overdrive. Recently it reached a new low, however. People were badmouthing local student athletes as young as 13 years old. Nasty, mean-spirited personal attacks have been made toward them and their families. Nobody who has anything mean to say signs their name, of course. It is sickening. This is online bullying at its worst. Clearly it is adults/parents bashing other people's kids. I am appalled that such a thing has become acceptable to ANYone in this county, or anywhere else. It is indeed bullying, plain and simple. Bullying should not be tolerated in any form, whether it is face to face or online, children or adults. Those who look the other way and allow bullying to continue should not be in any position of authority, and if it is tolerated as a freedom of speech issue online, then those sites should be boycotted or blocked in some way.

Example #3: Profanity and rude noises (of the bodily function variety) seem to have become socially acceptable. Now I'll have to qualify this one by saying that what people say and do in their own homes is their business. But in public it is terribly inappropriate. In school settings we try to instill some standards about what is acceptable and what is not, but if families and everyone else around a child are cursing, belching (and worse) in public, how can we expect them to be respectful of other people? Just because you occasionally remember to say "excuse me" that doesn't make it OK. Every time I am at a store, or somewhere else in public, I see and hear awful language and manners. Children learn what they live, and when you are surrounded by toxic waste you will start to create your own. As a parent it is very frustrating to try to teach a child about manners and respect when he hardly ever sees it anywhere. It is not only the people we encounter who are rude and profane, but have any of you parents ever listened to what your kids is on their MySpace or Facebook pages? Have you sat with them while they play their video games? You should. When children grow up with no moral compass they become adults who willfully harm and/or disrespect other people. I am no saint. I'm not suggesting that everyone be perfect all the time. That is not realistic. What I am suggesting is that we make an effort to raise our standards of behavior on a personal and a societal level. We can and should object to people and situations that are mean-spirited and damaging to our kids. They will grow up before we know it, and whatever they have learned is acceptable as children will become the norm in the very near future, no matter how mean, rude and offensive it is. We cannot simply throw our hands up and say it is hopeless. We cannot give in to lowest common denominator thinking. It is ugly. We can do better.

It's No Treat to be Tricked by Scary Investment Moves

Halloween is upon us. As an adult, you can smile at the ghouls and ghosts in the street. But in life, you will find some things that are truly alarming - such as scary investment moves.

For example, you can get some frightening results by either investing too conservatively or too aggressively. Try to find a balance that's appropriate for your risk tolerance.

It can also be hazardous to wait too long to invest or to take a "time out" from investing. The market will always go through ups and downs, but staying invested over the long term can help a portfolio weather the market ups and downs.

Another chilling investment move is to ignore tax-advantaged investment opportunities. Try to take full advantage of your 401(k) and IRA.

Halloween comes but once a year, but scary investment moves can haunt you for a lifetime - so try to avoid them.

Mary Alice Linke, 1960

Mary Alice Linke shares life story

By Judy Bishop

Several years ago, I asked my grandmother who was then a resident in a Louisiana nursing home, what she would be doing if she could be anywhere at that time. She answered that she would go back on the place (the farm), pick a bucket of huckleberries, take them home and bake a pie. Since then, I've often wondered where the people I meet in such places would really like to be if they could choose. I recently went to a nursing facility in Mountain View to ask that question.
 When I first saw Mrs. Mary Alice Linke, she was seated in a wheelchair in her room with a partially eaten tray of lunch. I told her it looked good, and she said it was. She had finished the mashed potatoes and gravy, and nibbled at the rest. We started to talk and several times I apologized for interrupting her meal.
 "I'd rather talk than eat," she said.
 Mrs. Linke's answer to my question wasn't what I expected. She said, "I don't really know where I want to be, but I do know I'm where I'm supposed to be. I have a lot of people taking care of me, and that's what I need."
 I decided to learn what I could about such a sensible and content woman.
 Mary Alice Tubbs Linke was the last of seven children born to Hattie Copeland Tubbs, a native of the Mt. Olive Community of Izard County, and Zed Tubbs from Mountain View. She was born in the early 1930s and was reared about two miles west of Mountain View. Her mother was the daughter of Francis Copeland, a circuit-riding preacher in Izard County. Hattie was Bible-reading, praying believer, though she didn't go to church much. Zed, Mary said, was a good man but not a church-goer. Mary Alice never knew her grandparents.
 Mrs. Linke had four sisters, one of whom died in childhood, and two brothers. Her sister Jurene, died at the age of 6 before Mary was born. The eldest sister, Edith Tubbs Lowe, was librarian at the Stone County Library for 47 years. Sister Opaline lived in the Mountain View area. The other sister, Nelle, moved to Oregon where she lived out her life. The two brothers were Hendrix, who lived in the Mountain View area, and Hanley. Hanley was killed in 1942 when his ship, the New Orleans, was torpedoed during World War II in the Battle of the Coral Sea.

 "We never had a service for Hanley," she said, adding that it would've been too hard on her mother. "He was buried in the cemetery in Honolulu, in Hawaii."
 "The ship he was on was brought back to California and was in what I think you call 'dry dock'. I had a chance to visit it when I was living in San Diego, but I didn't go."
 I asked if she regretted not going.
 Without hesitation, she nodded and said, "I do."
 Siblings Edith, Opalene, and Hendrix are buried at Flatwoods Cemetery east of Mountain View. Jurene is buried in the Historic Mountain View Cemetery, and Nelle was laid to rest in Oregon.
 On Mary Alice's wall are pictures of her daughter, Suzanne Mumert of Russellville, her grandson Jeffery, and her "granddog" Cinnamon Bunz.

Mary Alice graduated Mountain View High School in 1951. She remembers fondly Mrs. Watson, whom she recalls as being both superintendent and a classroom teacher.
 "She believed in people doing what they were supposed to do," Mary Alice said of Mrs. Watson. "She was a good woman as well as a good teacher. We knew when we went into her class we were going to sit down and study."

National Family Week to be observed

National Family Week was proclaimed in 1987 by President Ronald Reagan as Thanksgiving week. In order to share principles for building more committed, loving families in the Mountain View area, members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints are learning how to utilize the vast resources of the University of Arkansas Cooperative Extension Service.

There are two meetings planned to introduce the new materials. The first meeting will be this Sunday at 12:10 p.m., at the church chapel at 612 S Peabody Street in Mountain View. This first meeting is a pre-recorded presentation by Dr. Goddard, titled "The Most Important Steps along the Parenting Journey" with the objective to explain how the parenting techniques can be utilized in real life situations. An artistically pleasing and informative pamphlet titled "A Parenting Journey" is the basis for the presentation mentioned above. Seven workbooks are intended to be used to help a family assess and plan their strategy for success. All these items will be distributed at the meeting. A second meeting will be Thursday, November 18, at 7 p.m., again showing Dr. Goddard's presentation. Time for group discussion on how to be of benefit within our community will be an important topic after the presentation. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Branch President, Joel Dunlap, of the Mountain View Branch stated, "Last year was our first year to reach out in our community to strengthen families through church materials that we have been using for some time. We put together a packet called, "The Family Happiness Gift Pack". Favorable feedback was received by many receiving the packets last year, but we realized that to gain more universal acceptance for simply helping families all would benefit from materials not labeled by a particular denomination."

This year, area church leaders met with Dr. H. Wallace Goddard, Family Life Professor at the Cooperative Extension Service in Little Rock. All were very impressed with the quality and content of the materials they found there. President Dunlap stated, "The committee was pleased with the materials for three reasons. First, the concept of families developing a bond through love, patience and dedication of time on the part of the parents was right on target with our church concepts. Second, we realized that every county in Arkansas has an Extension Office with knowledgeable personnel available to advise patrons five or six days per week. Third, was the affordability of these resources. Many of the materials are at no cost and those that do have a charge are relatively nominal. Often people who need help are on a limited budget and cannot afford costly manuals and professional fees. We all came away impressed with how the State of Arkansas was investing in families in our state in such an insightfully wholesome manner."

"A fourth reason to be enthusiastic about the distribution of these materials," continued President Dunlap, "is for the potential for working with other civic and religious organizations to expand our mutual desire to serve others. We have begun to visualize how energized persons of various faiths could link arms together in harmony for the common good of the entire community. Frankly, unless we can all share this vision with like-minded persons our success will be limited."

Rodgers ordained as minister

John Rodgers was recently ordained as a minister of the Gospel by Fairview Missionary Baptist Church at Timbo. Rodgers and his wife, Jana and their sons Jacob and Justin are faithful members of the church.

Rev. Jesse Pate, pastor, brought the ordination service to order by calling all ordained pastors and deacons to participate in the Presbytery. Presbytery present were Jesse Pate and Steve Ross, from Fairview MBC; Junior Avey from Big Springs MBC; Lester Passmore from Oxley MBC; Dwight Johnson from Shady Grove MBC; John Marrow and Jay Swan from Red Doors

MBC; Jerry Rodgers and Jerry Flecher from Elizabeth MBC; and Keith Johnson from Bethany MBC.

Barham, clerk, read the requests made by the Presbytery. Pate, moderator, opened the services. Fletcher presented the candidate for questioning. Ross questioned the candidate in Bible and church doctrine. Motion was made and seconded by the church to continue with ordination service. The Presbytery then carried out the scriptural laying of hands.

Pate preached the Ordination Charge from 1 Peter 5. Rodgers presented his nephew with a King James Version Bible. Passmore concluded the service by presenting the ordination certificate.

Rodgers has been called to be associate pastor of Fairview Missionary Baptist church at Timbo.

John Rodgers (left), was ordained as a minister and receives certificate from Rev. Jesse Pate.

Timbo ‘Great Girls’ program to begin

Great Girls at Timbo began in September at Timbo High School. The program is planned to continue monthly through the school year. Eighth, ninth and tenth grade girls invited to participate will meet Stone County women who have pursued non-traditional employment which required a college background. During each meeting the girls will learn about the speaker's employment, educational background and how that speaker's education has affected her life. Participants will have the opportunity to question each guest and socialize during lunch for the group. The goal of the program is to demonstrate to the students the value of higher education and inspire them to work hard to accomplish their goals. Participants will also learn more about the many opportunities for well-educated women in the work force. Dr. Kelly Reece was the first speaker to meet with the group. Dr. Reece is a Timbo High School graduate who now practices veterinary medicine at the Nixon Animal Hospital. After high school she worked locally, but after several years enrolled in college to eventually earn her veterinary credentials. After graduation she returned to Stone County and has been practicing here since 2009. Most recently Stone County Clerk Donna Wilson, also a Timbo grad, spoke to the girls. Wilson told the group that attending college was a tremendous confidence builder for her and key to her success in her position of service to the county. Upcoming speakers include Stone County Leader Editor Lori Freeze and Timbo Principal Sue Linn.

My opponent used more than one-half of her campaign talking about how much money the Clerk's Office handles annually. The other part was stating what she didn't do.

The voters in Stone County are concerned about the procedures followed during any election. The Clerk's Office became the official Voter Registrar with the adoption of Amendment 51 of the Arkansas Constitution in 1966. The Clerk is responsible for maintaining an accurate and up-to-date voter registration list and stores ballot boxes between elections. In addition, the Clerk handles most of the administrative details of each election for the County Board of Election Commissioners (ACA 7-7-301).

The Clerk is responsible for absentee ballots. The County Board of Election Commissioners prepares official absentee ballots and delivers them to the Clerk for mailing to all qualified applicants as soon as practical, but in any event not later than 25 days before any election, and not later than 14 days before a runoff election, unless certification is delayed, in which case not later than 7 days before a runoff election (ACA 7-5-407). It is questionable as to whether this procedure was followed for the upcoming election.

Rebels win one in season opener

By Lori Freeze

Rural Special teams hosted Calico Rock last Tuesday for the season opener, with only the senior boys coming away with a win.

The junior boys were downed 54-24, with Austin Kocher leading scoring with nine points.

The senior girls kept it close for the first half at 17-21, but the strong and deep Lady Pirate team turned up the intensity in the second half to pull ahead 44-21, and went on to win 51-23. Sydney Sutterfield tossed in nine points for the Lady Rebels, including 7 of 10 freethrows.

The senior boys slipped by the Pirates 49-42. Dylan Stewart led scoring with 15 points, while Trey Berry sank 12, Cory Lee made 8 and Hunter Branscum added 7.

In the senior boys game, Calico Rock won the opening tip but committed a turnover. Cory Lee tipped in a shot at the other end to put the first points on the board for the Rebels. The Pirates quickly countered that basket, and added another before Lee scored again off a steal to tie the game at 4 all.

The Pirates nailed a three-pointer and Trey Berry answered with one for the Rebels almost a minute later. Calico Rock again went up by two points, then Dylan Stewart drove in for a score. The visitors scored inside and added a freethrow, but Stewart connected from beyond the arch to tie the score at 12, which held until the end of the first quarter.

the second period, and Stewart took advantage of a Pirate turnover to extend the lead. After another Calico turnover, Freeze tipped a rebound to Hunter Branscum and he put the home team ahead 19-12. The Pirates took a timeout and drafted a screen play, but instead recorded another turnover. Freeze grabbed a rebound and was fouled on the score attempt, and he made one of two freethrows with 5:15 left in the half.

Calico Rock scored two buckets over the next two and a half minutes before Stewart connected again. The visitors recorded three unanswered baskets in the final minute and a half to tie the game at 22. Sophomore Keaton Sutterfield swished a three-pointer with nine seconds on the clock to send his team to the lockerroom with a three-point advantage.

Two treys by Berry early in the third quarter gave the Rebels some breathing room, but the Pirates kept it within five at 37-32. Rural Special was able to maintain the edge through the fourth to start the season with a win.

Rural Special senior teams participated in the Twin Rivers Classic at Norfolk last week, the boys and girls both taking on Lead Hill.

The girls won 48-41, with Sydney Sutterfield tossing in 25 points and Zowey Plummer adding 12. Lead Hill went on a late-game run to overtake the Rebels 52-46. Lorn Freeze scored 12 points, Cory Lee 11 and Dylan Stewart 10.

Tigers prove too tough for 'Jackets

By Rusty Fraser

The Mountain View Yellowjackets held their own for almost one quarter against the conference leading West Fork Tigers Friday night in West Fork. But, the Tigers slowly pulled away from the 'Jackets and took the contest 38 to 7.

Mountain View received and the teams exchanged punts, then exchanged fumbles. Kyle Futrell recovered the last one for the 'Jackets. With 18 seconds left in the first half, West Fork scored on a long pass and made the extra point kick to take a 7 to 0 lead.

The Tigers next score came after a pass interception at the Mountain View 40. West Fork drove in from there and scored on a short run with 4:53 left in the first half.

Mountain View was forced to kick on the next possession, and West Fork took over at their own 15. The Tigers quickly moved down field, and scored with 30 seconds left in the first half to make it 21 to 0 at the break.

The Tigers received in the second half and kicked a field goal on their first possession to make it 24 to 0.

The Tigers scored again in the third quarter and a final touchdown in the fourth quarter to bring the score to 38 to 0.

Late in the fourth quarter, Caleb Robbins made two good runs to put the ball at the 1 yard line. Nate Williams ran in for the touchdown with 49 seconds left in the game, and Jessica Flanery kicked the extra point. This Friday, the 'Jackets travel to Green Forest and will return home for their final game with Marshall.

City council candidates profiled

Ward 3, Position 1

By Edie Nicholson

Two former city council members, Cindy Burroughs Moore and Sharon K. Long, will compete for Ward 3, Position 2 on the council Nov. 2.

Moore previously served one term on the council and said she decided to run again because she is still concerned about the issues.

"The issues we were working on four years ago are still in the works now," she said.

Animal control is one problem that Moore tried to help address as a former council member and is still concerned about. She has attended some recent meetings on the issue and said she feels the city needs to begin licensing animals as a revenue source to fund the program before it starts.

"It's still an issue that we need to work on," she said. "Before we do it, we need to start with licensing the pets to get a count and make sure animals in the city limits are vaccinated."

Moore is also concerned about the city recreation facilities and local festivals.

She said she is not in favor of spending too much money on the old swimming pool, but she would like to see the city look into some kind of cover over the pool that would allow it to be used for more of the year. The water aerobics classes and other health benefits of the pool would be good for the community all year, she said.

Moore is supportive of the efforts to improve local festivals but feels they need to be more focused on preserving heritage. She would also like to see the local schools get more involved in the Folk Festival parade again.

"I still think the school needs to get involved in the Folk Festival parades and get the kids back involved in the festivals," she said. "I want the heritage preserved. I just don't want us to get too off the beaten path."

Originally from Mountain View, Moore lived in Kansas for 20 years before returning here. She is the daughter of John and the late June Burroughs. She and her husband, Bill Moore, have three daughters – one attending UAMS and the other two at Mountain View School.

Long served on the city council for six years, from 1997 to 2002. A Mountain View native and lifelong resident, she is seeking office again because she said she enjoys serving the city and wants the best for her community.

"I enjoy working in the city, for the community. I'd like to see our city and community progress," she said.

Long said she is concerned about jobs and would like to see the city add some type of additional industry. She also supports tourism and believes it is necessary for the community.

"I think we need to keep our tourists coming in or otherwise we're not gonna prosper much," she said.

Long is also concerned about the flow of traffic in town and would like for the city to do something about it. She feels that additional stop lights downtown and at Bayou Drive would help a lot, as well as an additional street.

"It would be good if we could get a bypass in the airport area to get some school traffic off North Bayou," she commented.

On the issue of animal control, Long said the council was working on that even when she was a member and faced the problem that nobody wanted a shelter near their property.

"I'd like to work on the animal control, something we could all live with. Until you find a place to put the animals there's no good solution," she said. "There is an expense to it, but it just seems to me like it's needed," she added.

Long is an active member of Foothills Baptist Church and has also volunteered for the Mountain View Area Chamber of Commerce. She worked in computer data entry for Entergy for 17 years and now works for Stone County Insurance.

She and her husband, Billy Don, have two daughters and one son.

Ward 1, Position 1

By Edie Nicholson

City council member Erlene Carter will face challenger Norma Gibson for Ward 1, Position 1 this year.

Carter has served on the Mountain View City Council for 10 years and cited several accomplishments that have taken place during her service. The city has made continued improvements to the water system, she said, and despite the current lawsuit regarding pumps at the intake, there are plenty of pumps in operation to supply more than enough water. Generators capable of running the system have also been ordered, she said.

Carter said the city's police department has updated equipment and well-trained officers that make it one of the best small departments in the state. She serves on the recreation committee and is especially concerned about the recreation park, including the swimming pool, ballfields and other areas.

"All these facilities are well used and, we feel, a great asset to our youth and community," she said.

Carter added that the city is in good financial condition and that officials are optimistic about the future.

"There have been some hard decisions because of the economy, but I think they are being handled in a responsible manner," she said.

"I think it is important to have experience and understanding of the long-term goals and ongoing programs which benefit the citizens of Mountain View."

"My only motive in seeking this office is to serve the citizens of the city of Mountain View honestly and conscientiously," Carter commented, adding that she is not and never has been covered by the city's health insurance.

"I urge folks to call me with their questions and concerns, and I will do my best to represent these at city council meetings," Carter said.

Carter has worked as a craft interpreter at the Ozark Folk Center for 21 years and also served on the board of directors of the Arkansas Craft Guild and as a member of their standards committee.

Gibson has lived in Mountain View for many years and has been very active in the community doing volunteer work and other activities. She is known for her Christmas light displays at her home on Peabody Avenue, as well as weekly articles in the Stone County Citizen.

Gibson has served as a volunteer with Cub Scouts, Little League, football, PTA, and various other organizations in Arkansas and California, as well as the Red Cross Bloodmobile, veterans hospital in Little Rock, local festivals and the senior citizens center in Mountain View.

"I'm asking for your vote as your next city council member. With God's help and your votes, we can build a better bridge of hope, communication, faith, and unite the citizens of Mountain View, if we all pull together as a team for a better tomorrow," Gibson said.

Gibson also said she wants to keep the Mountain View city budget intact and not put such a burden on the voters. She noted that she will not accept medical insurance coverage from the city, adding up to a $10,798.80 savings over two years, which could be used for other purposes.

Gibson has a variety of education and training and an extensive work and military history.

She graduated from technical college studying accounting, secretarial work, and computers, as well as mechanical drafting.

She was stationed in San Francisco, Calif., in the United State Marine Corps for two years, was trained at the Women

Neil Olan has announced his intention to seek re-election as Izard County justice of the peace in District 5, which serves Sylamore.

Olan realizes that there are many issues facing Sylamore residents that are not adequately addressed by Izard County government. He intends to continue working diligently to address these issues. To help ensure that your tax dollars are spent wisely and proportionately, Olan will request that the new county judge appoint him to the Finance Committee. City council candidates profiled

Ward 2, Position 2

By Edie Nicholson

Current Mountain View City Councilman Dwight Johnson will face challenger Wayne R. "Ricky" Shuttleworth for the council seat in Ward 2, Position 2.

Shuttleworth has never served in an elected office, but he has an extensive background in public service — working as a volunteer firefighter and storm spotter. He has also attended a lot of city council meetings and said he is aware of most of the city issues.

"I will do what I can to help the people of Mountain View with their needs," he said.

He is especially concerned about the animal control issue that has been an ongoing problem in the city.

"I'm very aware of the animal problem and I would do my very best to help see if we can get something done about that," Shuttleworth said.

Shuttleworth is originally from Mountain View but spent several years in Colorado and Wisconsin while his father was working for the U.S. Forest Service. He returned to Mountain View in the early 1990s and said he enjoys this area very much.

Shuttleworth has been a volunteer firefighter and First Responder for both the Allison-Sylamore and Mountain View departments. He has served since the early 1990s and was recently promoted to sergeant incident safety officer for the Mountain View department.

He has also been involved with the Stone County Amateur Radio Club since 1992 and has been a storm spotter for many years, organizing storm spotter classes for the community and communicating with the local sheriff's office and the National Weather Service in times of severe weather.

He has been employed at the local Walmart store for 18 years and recently received a community volunteer award from Walmart.

"I just like helping serve the people," Shuttleworth commented. "I would appreciate your vote on Nov. 2, and I'll do my very best to help the people of Mountain View."

Johnson is currently serving his fifth term on the city council and cited irresponsible spending as one of his biggest concerns.

"If we had another natural disaster of the caliber of the tornado, this city would be flat broke right now," he said.

Johnson added that he feels the city should keep enough money in the bank to handle any large unexpected expenses that might come up. He questions some of the spending decisions that have been made in the last few years, including advertising and promotion for tourism.

"I know the tourist business is the city's number one business, but you can't advertise for everybody," Johnson said. "We, as individual businesses, need to do our own advertising."

"I'm just as conservative as I was four years ago," Johnson added.

On the issue of animal control, Johnson said he supports it but is concerned about how the city will afford it. He said the city could build a shelter to house animals but that operating it would be expensive. He suggested that a quarter-cent sales tax be proposed to fund the animal control program.

"I'd like to see it left up to the people," he said. "Right now, unless we cut something out of our budget, we're budgeting everything we've got coming in."

Johnson has lived in Mountain View since 1974 and has operated a small business, The Krispy House, since 1988. He is available at his business in the mornings before noon, and he welcomes people to stop by or call him there at 269-3144.

Governor Beebe Supports Curren Everett

After working with him for the past four years at the Capitol, Governor Mike Beebe has endorsed Curren Everett in this election for State Senate, District 10.

"Curren Everett is a strong, stable leader at the Capitol. He acts in the best interest of the people he represents and fights hard for what he believes. Curren knows how to get things done — like helping me balance the budget and cut taxes at the same time.

He's the best choice for election to the Senate, no question."

Mary Alice loved school and didn't want to miss a day. Her best friend growing up was Anna Jean Blair. "She's the one who taught me how to smoke," Mary said with a twinkle in her eye, adding, "We didn't know it would kill you!" "I think we've both quit," she added. Anna remains her best friend today, and they talk frequently on the phone. Mary Alice met her husband, Milton Samuel Linke, in Mountain View. They were married on Jan. 21, 1960, and the next day left for San Diego. Her husband owned some one-bedroom apartments there and they lived in one. Later, they bought a house in nearby El Cajon, where Mel was a chef at the officer's club at the Naval Training Center. He was not in the service then, but had previously served in the Coast Guard. I asked if her husband ever cooked at home, and she replied, smiling, "When we had company."

Milton Samuel and Mary Alice Linke,

business, she said she did. "I missed all that work." While they were running the Rainbow, the Linkes made friends with a couple from Denham Springs, Louisiana, who were visiting the area. "We bought a mobile home, drove it to Denham Springs, and parked in their front yard for a few months." "We were good friends," she said. "But after awhile I missed the mountains and the Mountain View people. We drove the camper back and sold it when we got here." For awhile, Mary Alice worked as a home health personal care aide. "I did whatever needed to be done, including washing clothes and windows," she said. "It was good for me and I was helping people, too." "I took care of some very special people," she continued. "Allie Dearien was one. She was just a very sweet Christian lady." Now, Mary Alice is the recipient of many caregivers. She once survived a brain aneurism that kept her in Doctor's Hospital in Little Rock for 16 days. Another time she fell and broke her leg. "I fell on the ice coming back from the mailbox. You can imagine all those Christmas cards flying up in the air when I went down!" She is satisfied with where she is as long as she has something to read and her television. She enjoys watching news, documentaries, "everything," she said. "I still love to read," she said. "I read this book (pointing to the large brown Bible on her bed) more than any." When asked about her favorite food, she replied, "Sometimes I wish I didn't have to eat at all!" But she says she likes potatoes, especially when home-fried with onions, or mashed with gravy. She still remembers Christmas dinners her mother used to make, with a baked hen, a pan of Southern-style cornbread dressing, and fruit salad. That brings to mind going back in the woods with her brothers and sisters to cut down a Christmas tree, decorating it on Christmas Eve, tacking up their socks on the mantle, and waiting for Santa Claus to come on Christmas morning. But even such a sweet memory as that was not one that she would call back and relive. "I am where I am supposed to be," she said.

Milton Samuel Link in Rainbow Cafe

HENDERSON

The campaign is nearly over. Now it is time for you to cast your vote; a vote for our future.

As you go to the polls, consider the importance of this election. Other races have dominated the discussion, but our next mayor will chart a path for the future of our city, for better or worse. The challenges ahead will require leadership, vision, resolve, and creativity. We must move forward, otherwise we will surely slide backward like so many other failing rural towns. I am not willing to let that happen. I am ready to fight for Mountain View. I am ready to get things done. I am ready to serve our people. I hope you will grant me that opportunity. Thank You ~ JTH

Turner releases CD

Tasha Turner of Mississippi's 2009-the Turners Gospel Bluegrass is happy to announce that her first solo project "Hey It's A Beautiful Day," will be released this weekend.

The album features 11 songs she has written, with a bonus track of a tune her younger brother Titus Turner wrote.

Tasha feels honored to have members from her favorite band "Mountain Heart," play on this CD. Josh Shilling who resides in Nashville, Tenn. played piano, along with Aaron Ramsey from Morganton, North Carolina, who played the banjo.

Timmy Crouch of Strawberry, Ark. played fiddle, mandolin, and guitar on this project.

ing the issue, and council member Bruce Stevens – who is the only member running unopposed for re-election – agreed to take it on.

Also during the meeting, the council approved paying up to $6,000 to replace wiring at the city pool. Charles Ramsey said it might not cost that much, but that would cover it, worst case scenario.

Parks Director Russell Gilbert said a leak at the pool was fixed this year, and, once the wiring is repaired, everything should be in good shape. In other business the council:

- approved a proposed policy submitted by Ramsey on behalf of the Planning and Zoning Department, detailing procedures to be followed in the event of an annexation. This will eliminate confusion about which roads are to become city streets, etc., in future annexations. Ramsey said 90 percent of the document was taken from state law.

- approved an agreement for the county to collect the 1.8 mil property tax on behalf of the city. This represents no change to the millage. Cash said it usually runs about $50,000.

- discussed the water department financial report that was published in the Stone County Leader. At least one complaint had been made saying that it appeared the department had millions of dollars in the bank. However, Water Superintendent James Henderson said that the

The fundraiser goes to benefit the Stone County Santa Program.

Garden Club to meet

The regular monthly meeting of the Mountain View Garden Club will be Nov. 3 at 1 p.m. at the Pioneer Village meeting room.

Several of the members went out to Paul White's last month to make hypertufa pots, like playing in mud.

They should be dry and ready for planting.

Yearbooks should be ready, and dues are due at this time. The program will be on African violets.

technology that you don't altogether understand, but appreciate, as it surrounds and beckons you to slumber in your toasty cocoon. Your last thoughts dread crawling out of this womb when morning comes and the world starts to stir. But for now you hold your hands together between your knees and try to remember when you've felt more attuned to Nature or more comfortable in any bed. Sleep takes its hold as you pass from consciousness into the waiting world of dreams. Life gets no finer than this. Gratitude and thankfulness are birthed from such surrender.

format in which they must report the budget makes it look like they have more money than they do. Most of what appears in the report represents assets that are restricted and not available for use.

- made some personnel changes in the water department, including raising Che Posada's wages to reflect a recent promotion and reinstating Henry Goodman at his previous tenure. The council also discussed a discrepancy between retirement plans for water employees and regular city employees. Henderson said the city contributes 12.5 percent on retirement for city employees but only 10 percent for water employees, and they have to wait three years before being eligible. He would like to see this adjusted to provide the same benefit for all employees.

- agreed to cancel the regular Nov. 2 meeting, which falls on election day. Cash will schedule a special meeting on a different night if needed.

I can make a difference as your County Judge.

- ★ I will continue to maintain roads, keep up county facilities and stay within the Budget of Stone County.
- ★ I will work to keep agriculture, tourism and industry strong in Stone County.
- ★ I will continue to support youth activities and the Stone County Recreation Complex.
- ★ I will continue to help keep Stone County a beautiful and wonderful place to live and visit.
- ★ I will continue working with our rural fire departments to obtain more grants for new fire stations and better equipment.
- ★ I will continue to work with the NADC Senior Citizen Center to get the new building project completed.
- ★ I will continue to work with local and state officials for the betterment of our County.
- ★ During my 10 years in office we have seen many changes, including 8 declared natural disasters. With each of the changes & disasters we have had to adjust our way of maintaining county business as we knew it. In 1 year we saw fuel go from $1.00 a gallon to $4.50 a gallon. Despite all of this, we have been able to make progress on our roads and bridge system. In the last 10 years we paved more roads than had previously been paved in the history of Stone County.

I have an open door policy at the office, if you need to talk to me please call or drop by my office.

Your vote will be very much appreciated.

CHECK THE STATUS OF YOUR SAVINGS BONDS

There's a good chance you have some U.S. savings bonds stashed away in a safe deposit box or a drawer somewhere. Perhaps you received them as a graduation gift or purchased them through a company savings plan. Do you know whether they're still earning interest? It might be worth checking.

Track important dates. There are two dates you need to know. Savings bonds accrue interest and increase in value until "original maturity." That's when the value of the bond reaches face value. But that doesn't mean it stops earning interest. It keeps earning through one or more extension periods until "final maturity." After that date, it earns no more interest. For many bonds, final maturity is 30 to 40 years after the issue date.

Evaluate extension period interest. During the extension periods, bonds generally earn interest at market rates, sometimes with a guaranteed minimum rate. Depending on current market rates, those guaranteed minimum rates might be attractive. You may want to leave your bond earning interest until it reaches its final maturity.

Be aware of tax consequences. When your bond reaches final maturity, tax on the interest earned is due whether you cash the bond in or continue to hold it (unless you elected to pay tax on the accrued interest on an annual basis). You need to be aware of approaching final maturity dates on any bonds you own and do some planning to minimize the tax consequences. For example, it might make sense to cash bonds in over a number of years prior to final maturity in order to spread out taxes owed.

Check your bond's status. It's easy to check on your bond's maturity dates or to discover the interest rate you're earning. Just go to the savings bond website at www.publicdebt.treas.gov where there's even a calculator to let you find your bond's current value.

Call us if we can be of any assistance with the tax issues involved in savings bond investing.

Commission sets turkey season dates

Commissioners with the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission this week approved an 18-day spring turkey season. The season framework was approved after a review of recent harvests, brood surveys and gobbling chronology data along with input from turkey hunters.

Commissioners also removed two zones on Arkansas lands east of the Mississippi River. Zone 17A, which included adjacent Tennessee lands and Zone 17B which included adjacent Mississippi lands, will now be in Zone 17.

Arkansas OUTDOORS

News from the Arkansas Game & Fish Commission

The spring 2011 turkey season youth hunt will be April 9-10 for the entire state.

The statewide spring turkey season will be April 16-May 3 in zones 1, 2, 3, 4B, 5, 5B, 6, 7, 7A, 8, 9, 10 and 17 and April 16-26 in zones 4, 4A, 5A and 9A. Zone 1A will be closed.

The bag limit for the spring season will be no more than one legal turkey taken per day and no more than two legal turkeys taken during the season. Youth may only take one jake during the season, either during the youth hunt or statewide hunt, but adult hunters will be limited to mature gobblers only.

In other business, the Commission:

- Approved a grant to the Arkansas Department of Education of just over $671,290. The money comes from criminal fines collected from AGFC enforcement efforts throughout the state. It will be distributed to the counties where the offenses occurred to be used for conservation education programs. Since 2004, more than $4.2 million have been collected from fines and distributed for the educational programs.

- Approved a document addressing ethical responsibilities, including topics such as conflicts of interest, prohibited gifts and income reporting. The document is written to clarify responsibilities of Commissioners and agency employees.

- Approved two agreements authorizing funding for pilot grant programs for wildlife observation trails and wildlife recreation facilities. The trails program will involve the AGFC and Arkansas Department of Parks and Tourism while the facilities program will involve the AGFC and Arkansas Department of Rural Services. The two agencies will solicit, review and prioritize applications for the grants and forward recommendations to the AGFC for approval. The wildlife observation trail program authorizes $1 million in grants and $500,000 for the wildlife recreation facilities program. The grants are a result of oil and gas leases on AGFC property.

- Approved a budget increase of $262,318 from a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service grant to deal with oversight, surveillance, communication and research of White Nose Syndrome in the state's bat population. The disease has been destroying bat populations in other parts of the country, but no bats in Arkansas have been found to have the disease.

- Approved a budget increase of $70,000 from the U.S. Department of Agriculture to monitor Avian Influenza. The money will be used to purchase equipment and supplies related to waterfowl trapping, safety supplies and to reimburse the agency for personnel hours spent collecting samples from waterfowl.

- Approved a name change involving 2,800 acres of land purchased by the AGFC in northwest Searcy County. The Commission had originally approved renaming the area the Sonny Varnell Richland Valley Elk Conservation Area. The name will be changed to Richland Valley Sonny Varnell Elk Conservation Area to recognize the historical, cultural and genealogical values unique to the area.

- Approved a change in the Resident Roe Buyer/Exporter Agent Permit to allow designated agents of the Roe Buyer/Exporter Permit to purchase roe.

- Approved a budget increase of $28,000 of Marine Fuel Tax funds for the installation of a public boat ramp and access area at Rocky Hole Lake in Desha County.

- Approved a budget increase of $10,000 to develop a comprehensive communications plan for the agency.

Pro Bono Celebration Week underway

Lawyers are in the problem solving business. They recognize better than anyone the gap between legal need and legal aid. They recognize that Arkansas ranks 48th among dollars spent per poor person on civil legal aid. They recognize that approximately 80 percent of the legal needs of Americans of limited income remain unmet. Arkansas lawyers are doing their part to change these statistics and to provide justice to all low income Arkansans through pro bono service, i.e. free legal service rendered in the same way it is rendered to a paying client. The Arkansas Access to Justice Commission encourages every Arkansas attorney to provide a minimum of 50 hours of pro bono service annually. To highlight the role of pro bono service across America, lawyers will observe the second National Pro Bono Celebration Week, October 24-30. In Arkansas, organizations serving low-income citizens are encouraging law firms, corporate legal departments, government legal offices, judicial offices, and law schools to participate in its "Just Jeans" event by observing a casual Friday on October 29, with participating employees and students making a minimum suggested contribution of $5. Contributions collected will go to the Access of Justice Foundation, which will distribute funds raised to the Center for Arkansas Legal Service and Legal Aid of Arkansas. Many attorneys in Arkansas provide much more pro bono service than the suggested minimum. In 2009, Joanne McCracken volunteered over 250 hours of service to the citizens of Benton County. Gray Dellinger and Whitman Fowlkes were recognized as the Outstanding Volunteer Attorneys in Izard and Stone Counties. They were among more than 800 volunteer attorneys who took pro bono cases in 2009. Their service had a value of $935,600, according to Bill Waddell, President of the Arkansas Access to Justice Foundation.

Across the United States, more lawyers are devoting more hours to pro bono legal services than in the past. According to a study released by the American Bar Association, lawyers are doing pro bono work at nearly three times the rate that the general population does volunteer work. These figures demonstrate the concern that lawyers have for people and organizations in their communities. Among lawyers nationwide, the number of hours of free legal work has increased to 41 hours per lawyer per year in 2008.

Legal Aid of Arkansas is a non-profit corporation with a vision to improve the lives of low income Arkansans by championing equal access to justice regardless of economic or social circumstances. Legal Aid provides free legal help with civil legal matters to those who qualify. If you or someone you know needs help with a legal problem, has questions for a lawyer, has been sued, or doesn't know where to turn, call the Legal Aid Hotline at 1-800-952-9243.

YARB TALES

By Tina Marie Wilcox

Positive effects of fall

The Heritage Herb Garden at the Ozark Folk Center graces the park with visual colors and textures, sweet and pungent aromas. With their natural display, the herbs help us to interpret the history of the human use of plants.

This column revisits a theme from Yarb Tales written in 2006. Ever wonder what makes people walk around grinning, with a spring in the step and travel long distances to view the trees this time of year? This week while driving, deeply engrossed in thought, have you rounded a curve, sharply drawn in your breath to exclaim "Wow, look at that sugar maple!"

The emotional and physical response to direct interaction with nature in autumn is due to the release of pleasurable brain chemicals. We don't need double-blind studies to come to this conclusion.

Dopamine is the hormone that keeps you alert and allows you to learn and to experience pleasure. It is released in response to light and color.

Endorphins are hormones that reduce the sensation of pain and affect emotions or mood. These are released in response to exercise.

Serotonin is a hormone secreted when the retina receives light. It plays a role in mood, sleep, sexuality, and appetite.

When we drive along tree-lined roads, there is a rhythmic interplay of light and shadow, and contrasting bright, fiery and golden colors entering the brain through our eyes. This produces a sort of hypnotic state of mind. Dopamine and serotonin keep us alert and happy.

While walking through the woods, the effects from rhythmic light flashes, as in driving, are not as pronounced. Instead, there is the tempo of tramping of feet, an increase in oxygen to the brain, the smell of leaves, a cacophony of bird and squirrel calls all combining in the brain with riotous optic nerve stimulus. Endorphins are released and stimulate the pleasure centers of the brain. The positive effects are long-lasting. I am going outside right now! If I don't see you in the future—I'll see you in the pasture!

Retired teachers to meet

The Arkansas Retired Teachers Association (ARTA) will have an informal meeting for all retired former school personnel living in Baxter, Fulton, Izard, Sharp and Stone counties. The meeting will be Nov. 8 at 6:30 p.m. at Salem Elementary School cafeteria.

The purpose of the meeting will be to share information of importance to all school retirees.

The program will include information from several speakers representing ARTA, and the panel will be available to answer questions of importance to the audience.

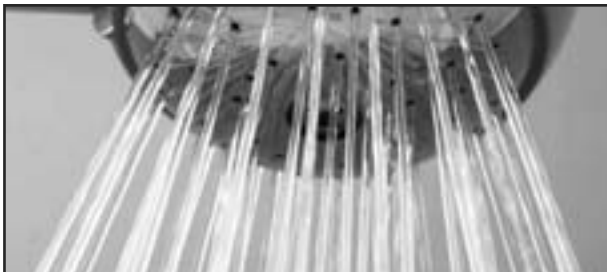

All current or future school retirees are welcome to attend.
