Sales tax discussion

Whit Fowlkes (standing right), the county's legal adviser, explains some legal aspects of a proposed one-cent sales tax at a special quorum court meeting Monday night. He said revenue from a county-wide sales tax would be administered by the state treasurer and paid to the county and two city governments on a per capita basis.

County and city set March dates

Sales tax elections scheduled

By Lori Freeze

After testing the water for a few weeks, local officials have decided the time is right to hold a one-cent sales tax election but the question is whether it will be city-wide, county-wide or both.

Both the Mountain View City Council and the Stone County Quorum Court have passed the necessary ordinances to hold elections in March for the tax, which was defeated in 1985.

At a special meeting Friday, the city council voted to hold an election March 23 and the county set its date of March 19 at a special meeting Monday night.

Members of both bodies have expressed their desire to reach an agreement so that only one election would be necessary. A joint meeting was expected this week.

The consensus of opinion among local officials is that both taxes will fail if two elections are held and if the tax passed city-wide first, the county would have little chance of ever passing its own tax.

The only other alternative is for the county to hold an election first as is scheduled. However, revenue from a county-wide tax would be divided between the city and county governments on a per capita basis and Mayor Jim Cash said the city's share would not be as much as needed.

According to a study done by the Research and Public Service Office of the University of Arkansas at Little Rock, a one-cent sales tax in Mountain View would generate $206,730 per year. Cash said a county-wide tax would bring in about $300,000.

Cash said the city's share of a county tax "would barely buy a fire truck." He said the city still has streets to maintain and possibly a police department.

Quorum Court members suggested that if the county takes over law enforcement within the city it would free the money the city had been spending on the police agreement. Cash said he would discuss the proposal with the city council.

The council was the first to propose a tax several weeks ago, citing the need for extra funding in the street department and fire department, for instance, if the same level of services is to be continued after this year.

During the quorum court's regular meeting last week, several justices reported that people had encouraged them to try for the tax county-wide.

"I think we'd be foolish to sit back and let it pass in the city," Justice Scotty Branscum said. Judge Coleman Gammill appointed Branscum the chairman of the court's committee to meet with county residents and develop a plan for the tax.

Branscum said a tentative plan is to divide the largest percentage of tax revenue among the county road department, law enforcement and sanitation while smaller percentages would go to rural fire departments and organizations such as the NADC, soil conservation districts and little league.

Mayor not upset about county's cancellation of police agreement

By Lori Freeze

The Stone County Quorum Court voted Thursday night to give the city 60 days notice to cancel the police agreement between the city and county and Mountain View Mayor Jim Cash said that does not bother him.

"The county giving the police agreement back to the city doesn't bother me a bit," Cash said Friday at a special city council meeting.

The agreement, which specifies the amount of money to be paid to the county for law enforcement within the city limits, has been renewed in some form every year since 1981.

The city council and quorum court have been unable to reach an agreement on the amount of the contract for this year after several weeks of negotiation.

Cash said the city can "make it work" without the contract.

The quorum court also voted to fund the sheriff's department with enough money for four deputies and four radio operators, two of which would be paid under an on-the-job training program (formerly CETA).

That decision was made to fill two vacancies created several weeks ago when the city stopped payment of salaries to operators who were on the city payroll. The operators were hired by the city in 1983 because they were members of the quorum court and could not draw two salaries from the county. The men who recently filled the positions were not employed by the county.

In other business, the court:

--heard a report from County Judge Coleman Gammill on the purchase of two trucks, one of which can be used to haul the county's garbage to a landfill. Gammill said the vehicles, which he purchased for $8,500 each, are 1977 models and are in good condition.

--voted to remove the fee charged to private haulers dumping garbage at the waste compactor. Sanitation committee members said a fee for all users may have to be initiated if state matching money for sanitation is discontinued in July.

--decided a county dozer could be used at the compactor site to cover brush and similar items but that a different system would have to be used to dispose of "white goods" such as large appliances. Pollution Control and Ecology has required that these items be disposed of properly but putting them in the compactor is not recommended by its manufacturer.

Gammill also informed the court that a "work-fare" program might be implemented in Stone County in some manner. The program requires that able-bodied food stamp recipients work for a public entity in order to receive benefits.

County road scheduled for 1987 paving

A one mile section of County Road 32 is scheduled for paving this summer according to Stone County Judge Coleman Gammill.

The section to be paved runs from state Highway 14 at Pleasant Grove to the bridge at Mill Creek. County Road 32 connects state Highways 14 and 5. Judge Gammill said that he hoped the entire length of the road will be paved eventually.

A state Highway Department survey crew was working on the road last Thursday. Judge Gammill said, "The project will be let for bids once the engineering is completed. Hopefully, one of our local contractors will get the bid."

The judge said that this paving project is actually phase two of the road improvement project. Phase One was the construction of the Mill Creek Bridge which was completed in 1984.

Judge Gammill said that the road qualifies as a state aid and a federal aid project, with the federal government and the state providing 95% of the funds. The county will be required to fund 5% of the project cost.

M.V. board approves lease, option

The Mountain View School Board unanimously agreed at its February 16 meeting to allow the Community Resources Council to take over its old high school building for use as a youth center and other purposes.

The group would lease the structure at no charge for one year, in exchange for repairs estimated to be worth $2,500 to $3,000. At this time, it would have the option to purchase it for $18,000.

Board Chairman, Bob Turner said he considered this a fair price because the structure would house programs that would benefit the community. The board hasn't been able to attract any other potential buyers since the original one defaulted on his payments last year.

The council hopes to open a recreation center for teenagers in the building, as well as a day care facility, and to relocate the present food ministry there.

Moving down its agenda, the group gave a receptive hearing to a proposal by Superintendent Darrell Shelton to install a load management system on campus that is projected to bring a $41,000 reduction in the school's electric bills. As the unit would cost $37,196, it would pay for itself in less than a year, he noted.

The district would be able to tap money that is available for energy conservation projects for 55 percent of its expenses, according to the superintendent.

The system would have an override feature allowing the power to stay on in a particular area beyond the designated time when the campus is in use after class hours.

In other business, the board members opted not to switch to an umbrella insurance package at this time when Shelton reported it would apparently not result in any savings for the school. They also agreed to sell the bus garage at the old campus to George Erby. Erby, who submitted a high bid of $650 will tear down and move the old facility.

The group agreed to rehire High School Principal Dan Thomas and Elementary Principal Joe Stewart for the upcoming year.

Shelton said in a later interview that the school seemed to be over the hump in dealing with its lice infestation. As of Monday, 20 elementary youngsters and two high school pupils remained out of school.

"The problem is in all the schools, and we just need to handle it," he observed. "We've had two health nurses up here and they believe we're doing what should be done."

"The parents need to cooperate and realize we're not picking on them, but helping them help themselves. The young people are always the victims because they can't take care of themselves. The parents have to do it."

Requests for funding heard by M.V. Council at regular meeting

At the request of the Mountain View City Council, representatives of several local organizations presented reasons they need the money they receive from the city each year at the council's regular meeting last Tuesday.

Dwight Sutterfield, head of the airport commission, said emergency services and industry attraction provided by the airport are two reasons the city should continue funding the commission.

He said people are alive today because they have been able to use the airport to be transported to another area for emergency treatment.

Also, he said, an airport is one thing prospective industries look for when deciding where to locate.

Local citizens have contributed about $109,000 during the last ten years to match state funds and enable improvements to the facility, he said. The state will not provide money if matching funds are not available, he said.

Sutterfield said a runway extension project is planned so that larger airplanes can utilize the airport.

H.D. Taylor, owner of the Stone County Ambulance Service, said he needs funding to stay in business. He has operated the service since 1978 and has had a total loss of $3,000 or more every year. The loss in 1986 from uncollected bills was $5,274.20, he said.

"I'm doing this out of my heart," Taylor said. "I work day and night to try and take care of the people of Stone County."

He also cited decreasing Medicare payments and rising insurance rates as reasons he needs funding.

Eddie Cowell, of the Stone County Athletic Association, said the group needs money to help operate the baseball and softball programs for children and adults in summer.

He said the group spent about $9,200 last year and took in $8,400. He said $5,600 was paid to operate the lights on the fields. Other expenses included a coach, insurance, balls and other supplies, trophies and equipment.

John and R.P. Tinkle, owners of Stone County Disposal, said the money they receive is needed to offset the discount given to senior citizens.

Mayor Jim Cash said letters received from the Stone County Library and NADC specified the need for money to help pay utility expenses.

The budget for 1987 includes $23,000 divided among 17 recipients of donations.

The subject of donations was tabled for more research and discussion.

Cowell also reported to the council that the Dr Pepper Bottling Company will provide two electric scoreboards for the recreation complex in exchange for exclusive sale of its product for five years. The item was tabled until it is determined that the scoreboards become city property after five years.

Construction on this unpaved section of Gaylor Road will begin this summer. The 2.9 mile section from Gaylor Bridge to state Highway 14 is scheduled for a bid letting in June.

Bids to be let for highway paving

The final section of Gaylor Road (state Highway 87) will be let for construction bids this June, Stone County Judge Coleman Gammill has announced. The actual construction work on the paving of the 2.9 mile section of state Highway 87 will begin this year, the judge said.

The last unpaved section of Highway 87 runs from Gaylor Bridge (over South Sylamore Creek) to state Highway 14 near Fifty Six. When this project is completed, the entire length of Highway 87 between Highway 14 and Mountain View will be paved. The paving of Highway 87 from Mountain View to Gaylor Bridge was completed last year.

The judge said that he will be talking with land owners on Highway 87 about right of way donations over the next several days. Judge Gammill said that he has a set of plans for the road construction to show the landowners and that he will be available to discuss any problems that the landowners might have.

The judge said, "I'm certainly glad to see this project coming." He said that he first received the minute order on the Gaylor Road paving project from the state Highway Department over seven years ago. "It's been a long time coming, but at last, it's a reality," he said.

Industrial development is not free

In these days of economic gloom and doom, it was pretty nice to hear some upbeat news about the job situation in northcentral Arkansas. Community leaders at Batesville reported last week that they had managed to snare a major employer in the form of the H.H. Robertson Company at Pittsburg.

The firm, which makes aluminum products, is expected to have as many as 250 people on its payroll within two years. It anticipates generating a hefty $4 million in salaries and benefits annually, no small change to an area that has seen its industrial base dwindle in recent years.

The news should certainly give a shot in the arm to local efforts to recruit a major employer. Anyone who reads between the lines, however, will be somewhat sobered by the enormous effort that lay behind Batesville's success story.

Nothing is free these days, and industrial development, particularly considering the tremendous competition among communities for new jobs, is no exception. The people at Batesville laid out a cool quarter-million dollars to finance their campaign to attract the plant.

What's more, the process requires patience. It took Batesville three years before its huge commitment was translated into new jobs. We must be wise enough to realize that our efforts to entice a firm here won't bring results overnight.

Considering the circumstances, Northeast Arkansas hasn't done too badly in landing new companies.

The new steel mill that is planned for Blytheville, is, of course, one well-publicized example. There are others closer to home, such as the successes of the energetic people across the river at Calico Rock.

We shouldn't let these headlines, however, obscure the importance of home-grown, small-scale businesses in the campaign for new jobs. Local leaders will be selling Stone Countians short if they fail to develop the resources of the many enterprising businesspeople in the area.

Although not generating headlines in the state papers, there have been local developments along this line that look mighty encouraging. JOBS, Inc, formed with the help of the Rockefeller Foundation, is putting together a craft show and a catalogue to help local folks sell their wares. And only last week, community leaders and saw mill operators began mulling over the possibility of setting up a cooperative to increase the profitability of local operations.

We hope these efforts succeed and set the stage for more to come.

All of us must remember that the days of the great industrial migration to the south are long gone, as employers in search of a cheap labor pool are flocking overseas. We now live in a time when more and more communities are competing for a constantly shrinking number of major new industries.

Stone Countians are traditionally self-reliant folks, and should have little trouble assuming the responsibility of creating their own jobs, if given the right direction.

Poet Robert Graves said "love is a universal migraine, a bright stain on the vision, blotting out reason."

In other words, in his verbose way, the famous bard was only embellishing the old adage "love is blind."

This malady of the heart isn't confined just to the human species; animals are sometimes affected by it too.

This was illustrated recently when a lovesick bull moose called "Bullwinkle" made national and international headlines when he fell for a white faced heifer named "Jessica."

This odd little romantic saga began when the mixed up, 700-pound teenage moose wandered out of the Vermont woods and nuzzled up to Jessica with loving on his mind. The cow didn't object to the added moose's advances and news of the affair spread like wildfire.

Love bloomed and so did Jessica's owner when he realized he had a gold mine. Eager to exploit human curiosity about the weird, he quickly cashed in on this unlikely courtship by selling T-shirts and souvenirs to the thousands of gawkers who braved the dirt roads to his central Vermont farm.

If nothing else, the rare romantic tryst proved once again that a great number of people are interested in off-beat sex, whether in humans or animals.

Jessica's beaming owner stopped counting the picture-snapping voyeurs at 60,000; he was just too busy counting his money. The bizarre union also proved that Americans are not alone in this-reporters arrived from as far away as Holland and Australia.

Someone even wrote and recorded a ballad about the discombobulated duo called "The Lovesick Moose." The song has yet to appear on any charts but the very fact it was written says something about human nature.

But alas, like many great romances in history, the torrid affair in the cold north woods was destined to end on a sad note. Bullwinkle lost his antlers and his interest in Jessica about the same time and ambled back into the woods.

"Jessica is looking over at the hill for him, kinda' sad, I think" observed the cow's owner.

A local game warden said the moose apparently thought he was just a herd bull with a bunch of cows and when he lost his horns he lost his feeling of belonging and left.

But one of Jessica's owners has a different theory on why the once ardent moose suddenly developed a cold heart. If the speculation of the farmer's wife is correct, then that poor beast was even more mixed up than anyone suspected. She says the huge animal had an affair of the heart with her husband and left only when he went back to

Animal experts had predicted the relationship would end by the beginning of November; the official end of the moose breeding season. But apparently the moose couldn't read their calendar because he hung around for 76 days, wooing Jessica, far past the deadline and through autumn rainstorms and winter blizzards.

A noted British anthropologist once observed: "The sexual instincts are the most shapeable of any instinct. Let them be repressed, let their direct aim be denied them, and they will soon assume unrecognizable forms."

Or, as Napoleon Bonaparte said: "Love is a silly infatuation, dependent on it."

Animals seem to make the news when they cease to act intelligently and start imitating people and when beer-guzzling elephants went on a rampage in India, it made headlines.

Maybe this rip-roaring display of temper that damaged 70 homes was proof that even animals can get fed up and not take it any more. I can't blame the elephants because man has reduced this magnificent and once fearsome beast into little more than an oversized horse that does circus tricks.

But apparently it was simply hunger that drove the dozen elephants to tramp into an Indian settlement, scattering terrified residents. The famished pachyderms damaged about 70 homes as they plundered the villages' winter food stores which included barrels of lao pani—a beer made from rice. The rampagers proceeded to drink the

Will south Arkansas be a dumping ground?

As chairman of the Senate State Agencies and Governmental Affairs Committee, Nick Wilson of Pocahontas presided over a pretty emotional hearing last week on the proposal to consider several southeast Arkansas communities as dumps for low-level radioactive waste.

Residents of Cleveland County are up in arms about the prospect that their county would bear the brunt of the disposal problems that are created primarily by the Arkansas Power and Light nuclear power facilities at Dardanelle. Arkansas has officially entered into an agreement with four midwest states to deal with the waste that is building up at temporary storage areas by finding a single dump that would be the least objectionable to everyone involved.

Four and a half of the six proposed Arkansas locations are in Cleveland County, and local residents packed the hearing room last week to express support for legislation that would allow the state to withdraw from the contract. It would also force Arkansas Power and Light to shoulder the responsibility for disposing of the hazardous material in Pope County where it was generated.

Wilson predicted Monday that the committee would give this proposal a "thumbs down," saying Arkansas shouldn't give up on the multi-state compact unless other states begin to abandon it as well.

He isn't overly worried, at least yet, that southeast Arkansas will become a dumping ground for radioactive waste. "The fact that they've chosen sites in Arkansas doesn't mean they're going to be here," he declared. "There are other places like Kansas where the geology is a little better-suited for this purpose."

The senator, meanwhile, made headlines last week when it appeared that both the governor and lieutenant-governor might be out of the state at the same time, and Wilson, as president of the Senate, would automatically take over at the helm of state government. Wilson has joked with reporters that he is eager to take a position that he believes has been mishandled by Governor Bill Clinton, but didn't get his chance last week.

There are reports that Clinton is considering making a bid for the Democratic nomination for president next year, as is the other well-known Arkansan who also has the rumor mill in high gear, U.S. Senator Dale Bumpers. Should Clinton decide to run, he would be out of the state for prolonged periods, making it inevitable that Wilson would get his longed-for shot at running state government.

Wilson told the Leader, however, that he hasn't given Clinton any encouragement to seek higher office. "He's out of the state enough as it is," he said.

NEWS FROM THE PAST

30 YEARS AGO

The story of electric lights for Stone County carries us back to the year 1930, while the Arkansas Power & Light Company was still small. However small, they were doing everything in their power to carry electricity throughout the various communities, cities and counties.

Mr. Harvey Couch, organizer and also president of the company, along with several of his associates, were on a tour looking for prospective areas.

The Chamber of Commerce at Batesville, being active and alert, offered their assistance. They planned a meeting inviting several businessmen and leaders from surrounding counties. Several were present from Stone County.

After the meeting was over several visitors were called upon for short talks. Mr. Hendrix Lackey, son of Mr. G.W. Lackey, made a short talk on behalf of Stone County and Mountain View.

Farmers in Stone County have an opportunity to raise purple hull peas for freezing. Mr. John Simms, fieldman for Arkansas Frozen Foods, Inc., in Little Rock will be in Mountain View at the Court House, February 22 at 7 p.m. to discuss a market for peas. The price will be $4.00 or $4.25 per hundred or $80.00 to $85.00 per ton delivered to the plant in Little Rock.

The Mountain View Yellowjackets won their first game in the senior boys district tournament at Heber Springs from the Timbo Tigers Monday night with a score of 47-35. The Yellowjackets played Rose Bud last night for the second game of the tourney.

20 YEARS AGO

Verdicts in Juvenile Misdemeanor cases will be handed down by a jury rather than a Justice of the Peace in many of the cases tried at Mountain View in the future, I.W. Walker, Justice of the Peace for Blue Mountain Township, has announced.

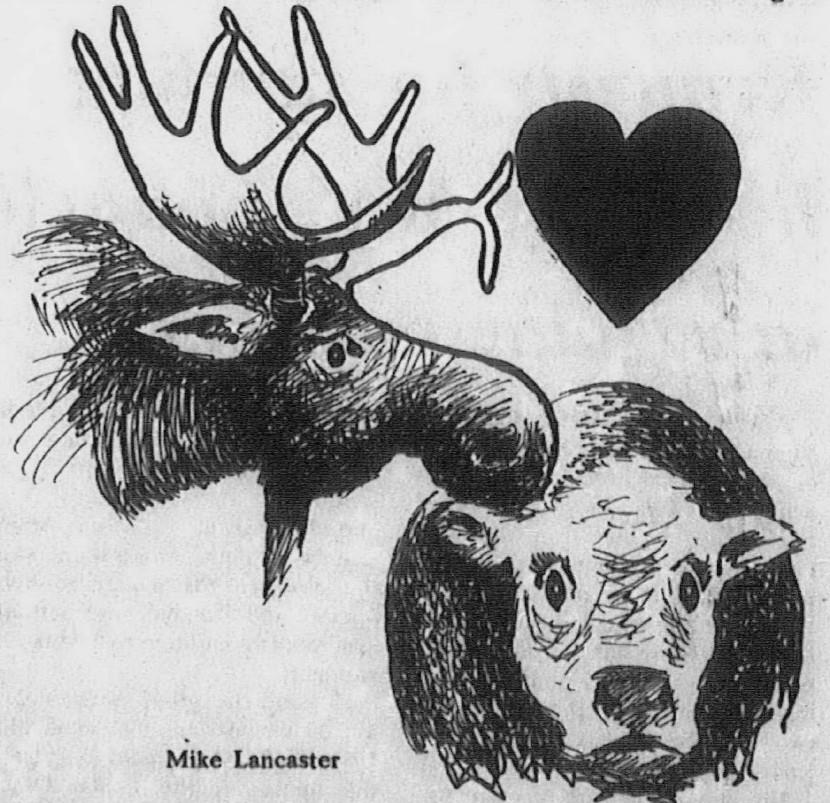

The first jury handed down a verdict Wednesday to become the first to handle such action in Mountain View.

The jury, made up of high school students from Mountain View High School, was the first every employed in this area and is being used on an experimental basis to determine the effectiveness of controlling law violations among the teenagers here.

Mountain View is only the second city in the state to use high school students to pass judgement on fellow classmates, although it has been used in other states for a number of years with very satisfactory results. Walker said that Walnut Ridge was the only other place he knew of that was using the system.

"Probably the main thing behind the project," Charles Rosa, Stone County Sheriff, said, "is that the students that serve on the juries will be gaining knowledge of actual court proceedings, and will realize that laws are actually for their protection rather than just a harrassing agency." Walker expressed similar reflection and said "the persons breaking the law feeling that they are making a favorable impression on fellow students and friends may well be set back by having the ones that they were trying to impress place a sentence."

The sentence decided upon by the jury will not be binding, however, for if the J.P. feels that justice was not accomplished, he will override the decision.

Pleasant Grove paving project

Stone County Judge Coleman Gammill, at right, confers with Arkansas State Highway Department Survey Chief Virgil Butler and members of his survey crew about the paving of a one mile stretch of county road 32 between the Mill Creek Bridge and state Highway 14 at Pleasant Grove. The judge said the bids for the project will be let as soon as the engineering is completed.

Says superintendent

Tri-County School in 'good shape' despite loss of $40,000 in funding

The Tri-County School District has had to absorb the loss of some $40,000 in state assistance it had counted on this year, but, unlike many of its counterparts, won't be plunged into financial disaster if it doesn't get any of it back.

"We're in surprisingly good shape for a school our size," said Dr. Hugh Pace, who took over at the helm this year. "This is due to a great degree to past efforts to be conservative in our spending."

Unlike many schools, Tri-County should end the year with an adequate reserve fund, even after compensating for the loss in state revenue and making the addition to its payroll that will be necessary to meet the standards by this June's deadline. All that remains for the district to be in compliance with the new regulations is the employment of a nurse one day a week, Pace said.

The School Board has, however, held off on a raise for its personnel this year to determine how generous the General Assembly will be in restoring the money that was lost due to the shortfall in revenue.

"We know we're going to meet the standards and we're going to be here," the superintendent declared. "We'll do everything we can to help the staff. The teachers got a $100 across-the-board raise last year, and that doesn't amount to a lot even with minor inflation."

The school's financial status was helped considerably by the fact that it is entitled to a special grant awarded as an incentive for districts to consolidate, as Fifty Six and Big Flat did two years ago. This will be phased out, however, in another three years, according to Pace.

The Board, he added, has applied for a grant to help compensate for the fact that the Sylamore National Forest isn't on the school's tax rolls, which, if forthcoming, could mean somewhere in the neighborhood of $10,000 or $15,000 annually.

In its regular meeting February 16, the group accepted a bid from Keith Smith to repair the sewer system and install a new septic tank at the high school. It also approved the transfer of two students to Calico Rock, which Pace said was only a technicality, as these pupils already attended the Icard County School but had not been legally transferred.

In the area of personnel, the Board agreed to rehire Rick Green as full time high school principal and Beverly Scott as half-time elementary principal for the upcoming year.

Pace was retained, also for the 1987-88 year, at the January meeting. The superintendent said last week that, in spite of the financial uncertainties the year has brought, he and his family have enjoyed their tenure here and hope to stay as long as possible.

Also during January, the board agreed to allow the high school gymnasium to be used free of charge as a service to the community from 2 to 5 p.m. each Sunday. Anyone wishing to use the facility at other times will have to pay $20.

It also learned that graduation has been set for 6 p.m. May 28 at Blanchard Springs Caverns.

With Tri-County on relatively secure financial footing, the only threat Pace sees on the horizon to the school's continued existence is the legislation now before the General Assembly to force the consolidation of the state's 330 districts.

"If some of the bills that are in the hopper now get through, we wouldn't have a lot of choice" as to where to send the youngsters in the area, he said. "Hopefully, the people of rural Arkansas and the rural school board won't let that kind of thing pass."

He agreed that "strange things" happened when the lawmakers convened at Little Rock. "There are too many people in Little Rock who don't much realize what small communities in Arkansas face."

As standards deadline nears

Funding problems face Mountain View School

The Mountain View School District, like most in Arkansas faces deep trouble if the state money that was withheld last month isn't forthcoming, Superintendent Darrell Shelton reminded the School Board last week. In spite of the urgency of the problem, he added, the average Arkansans haven't become involved in the campaign to win increased revenue for the schools.

Shelton said he had become aware that lawmakers "are not getting calls and telegrams from John Q. Public" after making two recent trips to Little Rock to sit in on the General Assembly proceedings.

"You need to talk to everybody and get them to lobby for more money for education," he told the board.

The House of Representatives endorsed an increase in the educational budget late last month, but many who backed the proposal indicated that they couldn't support a tax increase to pay for it.

"My personal opinion is that they're playing games down there" he declared. "Four or five schools will have to close before they get on the stick and get us some money."

The school still needs to add three elementary teachers, a half time elementary counselor and a nurse who will be on campus two days a week before it can comply with the standards. Although these must be in place by June 1, the school will get a visit from an accreditation committee in March to determine whether it can, indeed, meet the regulations on schedule.

With so many question marks remaining concerning school funding, "how can I write these people and say we'll be in compliance?" the superintendent asked.

His conversations have convinced him that there will be no leniency given districts that fall short of meeting the timetable for compliance, he added. "But in the last days of the session, if you don't see the money, then we will see some leeway in the standards."

Shelton told the Leader afterwards that he was gratified that the legislature had made some progress in restoring the funding cut the school sustained last month. About 90 percent of the administration's emergency funding package, which would provide $27.3 million of education, had been passed at that time.

beer and became so drunk they ploped down in the village to sleep it off.

The elephants left the next morning but returned that evening looking for more beer. The "bar" was closed. Armed guards were posted and when the marauders returned they were scared off by torches and firecrackers.

I'm reminded what Voltaire said: "Animals have these advantages over man: They never hear the clock strike, they die without any idea of death, they have no theologians to instruct them, their last moments are not disturbed by unwelcome and unpleasant ceremonies, their funerals cost nothing, and no one starts a lawsuit over their wills."

JoLynn Tibbie takes a shot for the Tri-County senior girls against the Saint Joe Wildcats last Tuesday at Tri-County. The Lady Mustangs lost the hard fought game 49 to 40. Tibbie was high scorer for Tri-County. This was the last game at home for the Tri-County seniors.

Timbo Tiger basketball

Both senior Timbo teams turned back Alread with little trouble last week, while the senior boys also had the satisfaction of overturning their earlier narrow loss to West Side. The senior girls, meanwhile, seemed on the road to avenging their 18-point defeat at the hands of the Eagles, but had victory snatched out of their hands in the waning minutes of the game.

The Tigers are playing extremely well, according to Coach Jerry Jeffery, and he was hoping they would stay in form for the 2 B West District competition that will bring the regular season to a close next week.

Both senior teams and the junior girls are ranked second in the event, while the other team fell somewhat lower in the evenly-matched junior boys division. If the senior squads live up to their billing and land a slot in the finals, they will advance to the regional round of the State Tournament.

The senior boys had allowed West Side to come from behind and snatch a late-game victory from them early in the season, and were determined to reverse the outcome in last week's rematch at Timbo. The Tigers again took an early lead, then allowed their opponent back in the game and trailed by two at the end of the third period.

This time, the boys managed to take back control of the ballgame and ended with a 51 to 48 win. "We got ahead and held the ball the last three or four minutes," said Jeffery. "They fouled us (to gain possession) and put us on the line, and Tommy Broyles and Douglas Powell made their free throws."

The team continued to mount the balanced attack that has characterized its play this season. Powell and Broyles led the pack with 13 and 12 points respectively, but Sammy Patrick and Eddie Krull were close behind with nine points and Eddie Lee added another eight. Powell, meanwhile, also was invaluable in setting up the Tiger offense, said the coach. Broyles dominated the rebounding department with 15 while Patrick had nine and Lee, eight.

West Side's girls, meanwhile, are in a close race against Shirley and South Side for the second spot in their Class A league and rolled over Timbo early in the season before the Tiger game began to click. The Tigers demonstrated last week that they had no intention of repeating history, battling into the lead and clinging to it until the final minute and half of play. Then, the breaks, it seemed, went to the Eagles, along with the lead. The final score: West Side 45 Timbo 40.

Kelley Brewer had a "super game," Jeffery observed, making 16 points, nine rebounds, and four

2B West District Tournament

Rural Special and Tri-County will bring their scheduled season to a close next week by joining Timbo and other 2 B West schools in the District Tournament, which will be staged at Leslie's new gymnasium.

The senior competition is shaping up to be much a carbon copy of last year's, with Tri-County and Leslie claiming their old spot at the top of the boys and girls brackets, respectively, and Timbo ending in second place in both.

A coach could easily find his players retired earlier than anticipated, however, by falling prey to the old sin of overconfidence. Anyone who doubts this has only to remember back to last year, when a Witts Springs Senior Boys team finally won its first game of the season in the early round of the District Tournament and advanced its way past its surprised opponents to a slot in the finals and an automatic berth in the state competition.

Play will begin next Monday with two local schools, Rural Special and Tri-County, squaring off in the senior girls division at 7:15. The Rural Special senior boys will take on Leslie at 8:30 the same evening.

At 6 p.m. Wednesday, Rural Special and Tri-County will do battle in what has emerged as a dogfight for the top position in the junior boys competition. The Rural Special junior girls will play at 7:15 the same evening.

As the top senior boys team, the Mustangs will not compete until the finals, scheduled for 8:30 Friday.

Junior 'Jackets win championship

The Mountain View Junior Boys finished up their conference season in style last Monday night in Greenbrier, winning their game with the Greenbrier Junior Boys 31 to 27 in overtime.

The Junior 'Jackets finished a perfect six and zero conference season to win the championship. This is the third year in a row that the Mountain View Junior Boys have won the championship. This year and last year the juniors have won the conference championship outright. Three seasons ago, the Junior 'Jackets shared the championship with Greenbrier.

Coach Dwight Gilbert said the boys got off to a slow start and were behind 10 to 5 at the end of the first quarter. The team trailed at halftime 17 to 15. At the end of the third quarter the boys had pulled within one point, then tied the game at 27 all forcing the overtime. Aaron Hardin made one field goal and Gary Don Dayberry hit two free throws in overtime to bring the final score to 31-27.

Dale Earls was high scorer with 9 points. Aaron Hardin and Darryll Sullivan scored six each. Robert Jessen and Gary Don Dayberry each scored five. Dayberry led in assists with three. Darryll Sullivan had two steals and Aaron Hardin led in rebounds with six.

The Junior Boys finished their regular season with a 16 and 3 record. They play this Wednesday at Heber Springs in the Junior Boys Tournament.

The Senior Boys, "ran into a buzz saw" according to Coach Gilbert in their game with Greenbrier, dropping the match 66 to 44. The coach said the seniors got off to a slow start, scored well in the last three quarters, but were unable to catch up.

Leading scorers were Pat O'Neill and Ron McGranahan with 10 points each. John Anderson scored seven. Pat O'Neill, Freddy Ward, and Bobby Storey got four rebounds each. Russ Moody and Mike Luster were credited with two assists each.

The Senior Boys finished their conference season eight and four, and are ranked third, behind Clinton and Greenbrier.

The Senior Girls also lost their game with Greenbrier 44 to 36. Susan Jones scored eight points, made 10 rebounds, had three assists, and two steals. Tina Lancaster scored seven points, made 10 rebounds, and had three assists. Lori Scroggins scored seven points and made five rebounds. Rhonda Rudd scored six points.

The Senior Girls were down by only four points with two minutes left, but were unable to convert.

The Senior Girls will play in the District Tournament at Heber Springs Thursday at 6:00 p.m.

The Senior B Boys finished their season Tuesday by defeating Concord bringing their season record to five and zero. Then on Thursday the Senior B's beat Tri-County 69 to 31.

Jeff Gillihan was high scorer with 18 points. Bobby Storey scored 14 and Mike Chitwood and Lynn Pogue scored 12 each. Brad Partee made nine rebounds, and Bobby Storey and Mike Chitwood made seven rebounds each. Jeff Gillihan made six steals.

The Senior B's played only one half against Shirley Friday due to the lack of referees. The score in that game was Mountain View 22 Shirley 6.

The Senior Boys also played

Oratorical winners

Joel Patterson, 14, of Rural Special, and Eugenie Bisulco, 14, of Timbo, recently won their divisions of the Optimist International Oratorical Contest sponsored by the Mountain View Optimist Club. The county-wide contest, held February 2, involved five local entrants who presented orations on the theme "Promise Yourself." Other entrants were Maureen Brennan of Fox, Josh Robinson and Ben Davis, both of Mountain View. The two winners are eligible to compete at zone and district levels. The prizes for overall winners in boys' and girls' divisions will be $1,000 scholarships.

or five steals in the game. Kim Farris has proved to be a consistently dependable player, and the West Side game was no exception, he noted, adding that Shelly George has made great strides in her recent games. The Tigers had to do without the services of Kim Farris for much of the game, as she twisted an ankle that was originally injured in the Bi-County Tournament the previous week. Mendy Trammell played well in her stead, said the coach. Another starter, Dana Passmore, is on the sick list with pneumonia. Although ill, she contributed 12 points and 14 rebounds against West Side, but hasn't been in class since. The coach was hopeful she would be back in form in time for next week's tournament. Brewer stayed on a roll for Thursday's contest against Alread, contributing 20 points and 11 rebounds to the team's 66 to 45 victory. Farris only saw action for part of the game, but managed to run up an impressive 20-point total while pulling down nine rebounds. Fletcher again had a good game, as did George, who was responsible for 10 points and four steals and Trammell, who had 11 and four in each category.

The boys, meanwhile, also ended with a lopsided winning margin, as they had built up a 53 to 36 advantage by the final horn. Broyles, Powell, Krull and Lee were all in double figures, while Patrick had a good evening on the boards, the coach said.

The junior boys, meanwhile, fell short against West Side by a scant two baskets, then romped over Alread in a 51 to 36 decision. "The junior boys are playing pretty good," said Jeffery. "The last four games, they've been as good as they can be. They're doing what they need to do with the tournament coming up."

Kris Mealer dominated Timbo's attack against West Side, sinking 28 points, followed by Greg Branscum with eight and Shawn Fletcher with four. In the Alread game, he drilled the basket for a 30-point total. While Fletcher and Larry James Gammill had 11 each and Jason Campbell added six.

The Lady Tigers saw their hopes to compete in the finals of the Bi-County Tournament evaporate after their semifinals opponent, Shirley, turned on the defensive pressure, erased a 14-point deficit, and scrambled into the lead late in the game.

Timbo had beaten the Devils earlier on the Tiger court, and the girls will have the opportunity to make it two out of three when the two teams face off for a rematch this Thursday in the last regular game of the season. The senior teams only will compete in the games, which will be at Shirley.

The Timbo junior boys, meanwhile, will be paired against Witts Springs at 6 p.m. next Monday at the 2 B West District Tournament, which is also hosted by Leslie this year. Both senior teams will take on Witts Springs as well on Tuesday, with the girls slated to play at 7:15 p.m. and the boys at 8:30 p.m. The junior girls are to take on Rural Special at 7:15 p.m. Wednesday.

The finals for the junior girls division will be played on Thursday, while the championships for the other teams are to be decided Friday.

Mountain View basketball

Shirley Friday and won their game 60 to 46. Pat O'Neill was high scorer with 26. Chris Sutterfield and Mike Luster scored 10 each, and John Anderson scored eight. The Senior Boys are 17 and eight overall with one regular season game left with Concord Tuesday night.

The Seventh Grade Girls played Batesville at home Thursday night and won 22 to 9. Dena Barnes and Tabitha Tidwell scored six points each.

The Eighth Grade Girls also beat Batesville 45 to 26. Nancy Anderson scored 16 points, Anne Ramsey scored 10 points, Sara Purdom and Sandy Walker scored eight points each.

The Ninth Grade Girls lost to Batesville 36 to 15.

Tuesday, the Senior Girls beat Concord at home 65 to 55. Tina Lancaster scored 21 points, had 14 rebounds, four assists, and seven steals. Susan Jones scored 12 points, 10 rebounds, and two steals. Lori Scroggins scored nine points, 11 rebounds and five assists. Melinda Atchison and Rhonda Rudd scored eight points each.

Friday night at Shirley, the Senior Girls won in overtime 55 to 50 over the Shirley Girls.

At the end of the first quarter, the Lady 'Jackets had the Shirley team down 18 to 6 with all 18 points being scored by Tina Lancaster. The Shirley Girls went to a full court press in the third quarter and closed the gap, and tied the game 49 all at the end of regulation play. But the full court press took its toll in fouls, and with four players on the bench, the Shirley team fell behind and lost in overtime 55 to 50.

Tina Lancaster scored 24 points, made 13 rebounds and two assists. Susan Jones scored 14 points, made 14 rebounds, and two assists. Lisa Jeffery came off the bench in the fourth quarter and scored nine points.

Leader/ Freeze

Water droplets were the only thing caught in this spider web Saturday as fog rolled in and hovered over much of Stone County. The spiders' bad luck turned out to be a photographer's delight when dozens of the delicate designs were discovered in fields and fencerows.

Forestry resources need to be protected for prosperous future

Arkansas will have a more prosperous future if its forest resources are protected, wisely managed, and marketed is the primary conclusion of Governor Bill Clinton's "Forestry Action Plan" released by Clinton last Tuesday.

Work on the action plan began in September 1985 when Governor Clinton called together sixty Arkansas leaders in forestry and related fields to discuss economic development, specifically relating to Arkansas' forestry future.

Under the chairmanship of State Forester Edwin E. Waddell, several task forces were appointed to study education, taxes, research, multiple-use, marketing and private nonindustrial forestland and find potential development opportunities. The "Forestry Action Plan" which resulted lists goals for each area that was studied.

The plan points out that Arkansas is the only state in the south that does not have an advanced degree program at its College of Forestry, and recommends the development of a graduate education program for the state's forestry students.

Restoring and maintaining tax policies that acknowledge the long-term investments and risks inherent in the business of growing timber is another objective listed in the plan.

The Research and Development Task Force set an objective to conduct research to invigorate the forest economy and provide a base for environmental and forest management policy decisions.

Maintain markets for Arkansas pine lumber and wood products and develop a market for the less used hardwood species was recommended by the Task Force on Markets.

The Task Force on Private Nonindustrial Forestland suggested that one way to increase Arkansas' dwindling forest resource is to support the Conservation Reserve Program by promoting the planting of trees on marginal cropland.

The Action Plan also suggests who should be responsible for carrying out the many tasks which were developed and provides a timetable for when the initial efforts should be underway.

Revenue shortfall results in decreased school funding

Arkansas public schools will receive $29,297,537 less than last year as a result of the recent state revenue shortfall.

This second cut in the Arkansas Department of Education's Minimum Foundation Program Aid for the state fiscal year and the 1986-87 school year amounts to $54.20 per pupil. All but 50 of the state's 333 school districts will receive less money this year than they did last year.

A $13.9 million cut in Minimum Foundation Program Aid was announced in August, following the first state revenue shortfall of the fiscal year. At that time, schools were cut $28.60 per pupil.

In addition to Minimum Foundation Program Aid, schools have been cut twice this fiscal year (August and January) in transportation aid.

The total cut in the Public School Fund for January amounts to $27,379,512, which includes Minimum Foundation Program Aid ($24,824,271) and transportation aid.

The January cut for Mountain View amounted to $62,351; Timbo, $18,628; Rural Special, $18,125 and Tri-County, $20,941.

The total cut in the Public School Fund for August was $15,462,259. At the beginning of the fiscal year, the Public School Fund had been projected to receive a slight increase over last fiscal year.

Mtn. View Art Guild holds meeting

Several items of business were discussed at the February meeting of the Mountain View Art Guild.

After the meeting was brought to order by the president, Winnie Lou Wall, Sally Schiermeier, chairman of the Folk Center Gallery, reported on sales for the 1986 season.

Carolyn Mitchell brought to the attention of the members that the 1987 dues can be paid at the Gallery or mailed to P.O. Box 798. Mary Platt brought up information on the by-laws and it was discussed.

The Guild decided to purchase additional chairs and Doris Panici volunteered to take care of it. The president stated the need for volunteers to help when the need arises.

Carolyn Mitchell announced that Mark Britton will be at the Gallery February 23 for a one-day class in oil painting. Erna Brisco will conduct a two-day class in oil painting on March 26 and 27. Tole painting classes are currently being held every Wednesday at the Gallery. More workshops in different mediums will be made available in the future.
